FRENCH FIGHTS MODERNIZATION OF NAVAL SHIPS

Opposes $90,000,000 Bill for Construction of New Vessels.

BRITTEN WILL PRESS FOR SPEEDY ACTION

Idahoan Predicts Planes and Submarines Will Be Fleet's Backbone.

(Associated Press.)

Debate covering the wide range of naval activities spread out in the wake of the naval supply bill in the House yesterday and brought demands for immediate authorization of the administration's naval construction and modernization program.

Representative French (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the naval appropriations subcommittee, opposed both measures on the floor. He took his opposition to the modernization bill to the House rules committee. The one would authorize $90,000,000 for building new ships and the other $30,000,000 to modernize three battleships.

Chairman Britten, of the House naval committee, debating with Mr. French in the House, and in a statement he issued later announced he would demand action on both measures as soon as the $344,342,000 naval supply bill is disposed of, probably late in the week.

Opposes Modernization.

Mr. French contended it would be an unfortunate mistake to remodel the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho, predicting that type of vessels would cease to be the backbone of the fleets because of airplanes and submarines.

Mr. French asserted that most of those wanting this Government to build up to the limitations of the London Naval Treaty had personal interests to serve.

Asked by Mr. Britten whether he wanted the United States Navy to equal that of Great Britain, Mr. French said he favored a navy adequate to the needs of this country, but that he was not in favor of building up the fleet to keep up with some other nation.

Defends Naval Cuts.

He defended the $36,000,000 cut in naval appropriation and said the reason the Navy was asking for more line officers was because of the drain on the Naval Academy for aviators.

He insisted Naval Reserve aviators could be used, but Mr. Britten contended that men from other educational institutions did not have the naval training in navigation, engineering, electricity, discipline and other requirements for high commands in air and on the sea that the academy men received.

Mr. Britten said he also would demand action on the officer promotion measure.

"All of these bills," he said in a statement, "have the support of the present administration, from Hoover down. I am receiving telegrams from individuals and patriotic organizations all over the United States in which they view with alarm any congressional failure to pass the naval construction program during the present session."

Emphasizes Costs.

In the House, Mr. French contended the United States would be in a better position at the proposed 1935 naval conference if it did not build up to the London Naval Treaty limitations. Besides saving money, he said "from the standpoint of strategy, looking to further international reduction of armaments, this is the right course. Those who do not want to reduce all tonnage to lower levels at the next naval conference will demand that we build up to the topmost figures."

Turning back to the London Treaty limitations, Mr. French said it would cost from $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in 6 years to build up to them, while it would cost about $500,000,000 to maintain the fleet on that basis.

BREAD IS CALLED PRICE 'ARISTOCRAT'

U. S. Labor Statistics Head Tells Senate Inquiry Cost Tops All Other Foods.

FLOUR LOWEST IN YEARS

(Associated Press.)

Bread was described yesterday as a price aristocrat when compared to its ancestors, wheat and flour.

Ethelbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics, said it cost more than it should in view of the cheapness of the materials.

He presented statistics to show the price of bread in 51 cities is higher relatively than the wheat price and higher also than the average price of all other food products.

The cost of virtually all ingredients of bread, except condensed milk, have dropped recently, Mr. Stewart said.

A mass of statistics were presented to the Senate committee by representatives of millers and Government departments to show that the prices of wheat and flour today are lower than in years.

Chairman Capper asked Mr. Stewart if the figures did not show "the price of bread is higher than it should be in relation to the price the farmer receives for wheat and the miller for flour?"

"Yes," Mr. Stewart replied, "the price of flour is lower than for years.

"The wholesale price of flour follows the price of wheat very closely and the retail price of flour follows fairly closely."

Mr. Stewart said that, up to 1920, the price of bread was relatively lower than the wheat price, but since then it has been relatively higher.

"How do you explain that?" Senator Capper asked.

"It keeps the Bureau of Labor Statistics pretty busy to get facts without trying to explain them," Mr. Stewart replied, as committee members laughed.

He said the wages of union bakers have gone up slightly in the last six years, but not much.

Joseph A. Becker, of the Agriculture Department, testified the price paid wheat producers is lower than at any time since 1908, when compilation of monthly statistics was begun.

Inventor, Health Returning, to Watch Dedication of New Bridge.

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Rapidly returning to health after a brief illness, Thomas A. Edison today divided his attention between his laboratory and preparations for observance tomorrow of his eighty-fourth birthday.

The aged inventor, indisposed during his recent train ride here from New Jersey, was pronounced as "improving rapidly" after an examination by Dr. W. H. Kellogg, Battle Creek, Mich., an old friend.

BARTLETT USED IN POSTAL CASE, HE NOW FEARS

Knew Nothing of St. Paul Lease Row Till This Inquiry, He Says.

NEW MAY BE HEARD NEXT WEDNESDAY

Postmaster General Brown to Testify Today Before Senate Committee.

(Associated Press.)

John H. Bartlett, former Assistant Postmaster General, testified yesterday before the Senate postal lease investigating committee he had made no attempt to prevent a grand jury investigation of the St. Paul commercial station lease, but that he might have been "used" for that purpose.

Charles F. Trotter, who served under Bartlett, told the committee he was ordered by Postmaster General New to draft an acceptance of the lease, which later was characterized by a Federal grand jury as fraudulent.

Chairman Blaine announced that New, who has asked for opportunity to appear, probably would be called a week from today.

Postmaster General Brown is to testify today.

Beyond His Ken, He Says.

Bartlett's testimony concerning the grand jury investigation came when he was questioned by Chairman Blaine about a trip he made to St. Paul in July, 1928, shortly before the grand jury convened.

"Did you have any knowledge whatever," Mr. Blaine asked, "of an attempt to prevent a grand jury investigation?"

"No," Bartlett replied. "Nothing whatever of that kind came to my knowledge or was even suspected by me. The only thing of that kind was New's effort to displace Fesler."

He referred to Assistant District Attorney Fesler, at St. Paul, whose dismissal he had said New recommended after Fesler had presented evidence in connection with the lease to the grand jury.

"I never knew what happened to the grand jury until this investigation began," Bartlett said.

Thinks He Was "Used."

Blaine said he did not intend to intimate Bartlett had purposely interfered with the grand jury's action, but that the trip to St. Paul at that time might have had an effect, because Bartlett went to arrange for a new postoffice.

"Do you now realize you were taking a part which aided in obstructing the administration of justice?" Mr. Blaine asked.

"I can see I was used to quiet the people up there and perhaps played a part to fit into somebody's plans, but I had no knowledge of it," the witness replied.

Blaine pointed to evidence already given the committee that Fesler wrote to the Attorney General shortly before Bartlett's trip, suggesting early presentation of the case to the grand jury because the statute of limitations would expire in the near future.

Later Mr. Blaine said, Fesler also wrote to John S. Pratt, special Assistant to the Attorney General, who had been designated to assist him in the case, and asked Pratt to get to St. Paul before August 9, when he expected to be ready to present the case.

Describes Fesler Incident.

Recalling additional testimony that Pratt wrote District Attorney Drill he would not be able to get there until later, Blaine said Pratt had "successfully deferred action by the grand jury."

The jury was dismissed after three

SPECULATION AGAIN STIRS WALL STREET

Wide Public Buying Boosts Shares From $1 to $14 Higher at Close.

RISE IS $3,000,000,000

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Feverish speculation such as Wall street had not seen in months swept through the stock market today, boosting aggregate share values to the best level since mid-October.

The more popular shares ended the day $1 to $14 higher, and the days' transfers in the stock exchange swelled to 4,800,000 shares, 700,000 more than yesterday's, and the largest since December 17. The sweeping advance met more resistance than it did yesterday, however, and the net progress, as measured by the price index of 90 leading issues, was only a little more than half as wide.

The advance, which started with an unexpected, explosive bull drive late in Saturday's trading, has in three days added more than $3,000,000,000 to the aggregate quoted value of all shares listed on the stock exchange, or more than the total gain of the month of January.

While the vigor of the upturn has been attributed to a well-organized assault by powerful professional market operators against an overcrowded and largely amateur bear interest, commission houses reported that the speculative contagion was again spreading among the general public, and some houses experienced the most active public inquiry since the succession of four and five million share days in the abortive bull market of last April.

The advance in stocks was accom-

Chicago Attorney, Plaintiff, Says Basis Is Breach of Contract.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick, Illinois representative at large, was named today in a suit for $50,000 by Cairoli Gigliotta, attorney.

Gigliotta, the plaintiff, declined to tell what the suit involves except that its basis is breach of contract.

As president of the Immigrants Legal Aid Society, Gigliotta was instrumental in sending to Congress a petition, in 1929, asking investigation into the alleged relationship of Senator Charles S. Deneen with the slain "Diamond Joe" Esposito. The request was ignored.

ATTACK WAGED IN COMPROMISE ON RELIEF BILL

Republican Independents in Senate Delay Vote Until Today.

TALK ON LEGISLATION LEFT TO OPPOSITION

Norris Says Coalition Now Surrenders to Hoover With Banners Trailing.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Republican independents waged an all-day attack upon the compromise relief legislation yesterday and a vote went over until today.

Senators La Follette and Blaine, of Wisconsin, and Norris, of Nebraska, led the oratorical assault on the $20,000,000 drought loan fund. They asserted it was a surrender to President Hoover by the Senate coalition.

Anxious to get the funds appropriated for prompt relief, Democratic and Republican leaders who have indorsed the compromise left the talk to the opposition. They are confident of votes for adoption of the loan fund. A roll call was believed in sight for tomorrow.

Insurgents Doubt Benefit.

The Republican insurgents contended that the $20,000,000 loan chest would be of no benefit to those most in need of aid because of inability of many sufferers in the drought area to put up security. Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, expressed the belief, however, the Red Cross would supplement the Federal loans adequately.

Senators La Follette and Blaine challenged the contention of Democratic Leader Robinson that farmers borrowing the Federal funds could use it for the purchase of food. They said administration of the money for such purposes would be dishonest.

Senator Blaine characterized the letter of President Hoover assuring that the $20,000,000 appropriation for agricultural rehabilitation would be administered "fairly and sympathetically" as a "sham" and "meaning nothing."

Norris Decries Surrender.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, said the Senate coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents had marched up the hill with banners flying on the issue against President Hoover that Federal money was to be appropriated for purchase of food.

"But when we reached the summit," he said, "we became engulfed in the extra session cloud. We marched down the hill, our banners trailing, and surrendered to the chief."

The Republican Independents will have the balance of power in the new Congress in both Senate and House. Despite desire of some of the group to force an extra session of the new Congress, leaders were confident last night no filibuster was in progress. Confidence likewise was expressed that the necessary business of the session could be completed before the March 4 adjournment.

Senator La Follette asserted in opening the attack upon the compromise it was an "unconditional surrender."

Terms of Compromise.

"The terms of the compromise provide only for extending relief to those in a position to give security," he said. "Those most in need of relief will be unable to obtain it if this act is honestly and fairly administered. There is ample testimony to indicate thousands upon thousands of farmers are unable to offer any security."

Late yesterday Senator Thomas

BARS JURORS

DEMOCRATS CALLED TO MEET MARCH 5

Large Debt of Party to Be Discussed by National Committee.

PLAN DRIVE FOR FUNDS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A meeting of the Democratic national committee has been called here March 5 to discuss a nation-wide campaign for funds to pay off the party mortgage and to carry on, it was announced yesterday at the party headquarters here.

The meeting will also be for the purpose, it was said, of discussing "plans and policies to govern our activities during the next 15 months."

The headquarters statement also said that the purpose of the meeting "is to receive reports of the splendid accomplishments procured during the last 18 months by the fine organization in Washington built up under the able direction and leadership of Jouett Shouse, chairman of our executive committee."

The statement describes the meeting as highly important and urges a full attendance of the committee.

The meeting, scheduled for the day after Congress adjourns, will undoubtedly be in the nature of a general rally and will have as its most important business the question of what it intends to do about the $200,000 owed to Chairman Raskob and more than $400,000 owed to the County Trust Co. of New York, virtually owned by Mr. Raskob, Alfred E. Smith and their close associates.

It will be in the nature of an answer to the criticism within the party ranks that Mr. Raskob now owns the party lock, stock and barrel.

For several months the John Price Jones Corporation of New York, a national fund raising campaign agency, has been conducting a survey as to the feasibility of a campaign for funds to put the party on a popular running basis. For some time the agency is understood to have had access to the minority room in the House Office Building, at which Democratic members of the House were interviewed on the subject. The survey is to be reported upon at the March 5 meeting.

It is understood that while the corporation will probably exercise a supervision over the campaign that follows, assuming it is approved, giving its expert advice as the campaign goes along, that the actual collections will be left to the local organizations. In this manner it is hoped to arouse them and make them actively functioning units the year round.

It would not be wholly surprising if the plan in mind is not some membership plan such as the Red Cross has. Maybe buttons would be issued which the Democratic donors

COURT DEBARS CRUSADERS ON LIQUOR JURIES

Justice Luhring Excuses Talesman Admitting Membership.

ANTISALOON LEAGUE ALSO PUT UNDER BAN

Far-Reaching Issue Decided in Glassman Rum Trial; Witnesses Heard.

Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court, in effect, has ruled that members of the Crusaders, the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Anti-Saloon League are not qualified to serve as jurors in cases arising under the national prohibition act. This pronouncement was made in selecting the jury which is trying Herbert Glassman and ten others on charges of conspiracy to violate the act.

While for some time, it is said, the question has been propounded to prospective jurors in police cases as to membership in the Crusaders, the question was asked for the first time in the higher court in the present case. It also was understood that the Anti-Saloon League and the association membership never previously had been questioned in any of the courts.

Justice Luhring in excusing a juror because he was a Crusader said, after asking what the Crusaders stood for: "I would say that any member of the jury that is a member of an organization of that sort, or any member of the Anti-Saloon League, they should not be triers of the facts, and should be excused."

Crusader Is Excused.

One member of the prospective jury, who admitted membership in the Crusaders, was excused, and exception noted by defense counsel. No persons called to the jury box admitted membership in the league or the association.

The questioning of jurors up to the justice's ruling follows:

By Mr. Orcutt, (addressed to the body of the jurors)—Are any of you members of an organization called the Crusaders?

(No response).

By Mr. Orcutt (addressed to Juror Charles W. Campbell)—You are a member, are you Mr. Campbell?

Juror Campbell—No.

The Court—What is that organization, the Crusaders?

Mr. Orcutt—The Crusaders, as I understand it, is an organization whose purpose is to oppose the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act.

Mr. Whelan—Or to modify it.

Mr. Orcutt—Or modify it.

(Jurors Vincent H. Conner and George A. Deering indicated by raising their hands).

By Mr. Orcutt:

Q. (Addressed to the jurors)—You are a member, are you?

Juror Deering—Yes, sir.

Mr. Vandoren—If the Court please, simply because they are members, would that disqualify them?

Should Not Try Facts.

The Court—I would say that any member of the jury that is a member of an organization of that sort, or any member of the Antisaloon League, they should not be triers of the facts, and should be excused.

Mr. Vandoren—Because a man is a member of the Crusaders, ipso facto, does not say that he could not give a fair and impartial verdict.

The Court—I will exercise a discretion and excuse them.

Mr. Vandoren—May I have an exception, on behalf of the defendant Behrle? * * *

The Court—Yes.

By Mr. Kirkland of the juror Daniel Neal Mandell.

Q. Are you a member of the Crusaders, an organization that has for it's purpose——

A. No, sir.

Q. Or are you a member of the Antisaloon League?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or any organization that has for its purpose opposition to the eighteenth amendment?

A. No, sir.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Recent news from Europe is of an encouraging nature. After being suspended for several years the freedom of the press and other constitutional rights have now been restored in Spain and general parliamentary elections have been ordered. Instead of trial by battle and reform by revolution the peaceful methods of representative government are being adopted.

The well-wishers of the German people also have seen their faith justified by the support which Chancellor Bruening is receiving in the Reichstag. It is silencing Germany's critics and strengthening the hands of her friends. Opposition is less in France to extending German credits and continuing a friendly policy. These developments increase the possibility of a naval agreement between France and Italy.

The people of the world have a reserve moral power which can not be ignored in estimating the action they will take in emergencies. Before we conclude that the orderly processes of governments are to be entirely broken down; that the business of the world is prostrated beyond recovery, it is necessary to consider this recuperative power of the people themselves. This great constructive force has no known limits. Silently and almost imperceptibly it moves, forever on the side of right.

Norwegian Skipper Taken To Baltimore Port in Irons

Freighter's Captain Accused of Injuring First and Second Mates in Fight; Another Ship, Recently in Mutiny, Is Libeled.

Baltimore, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The captain of a Norwegian freighter was brought to port here today in irons, following an altercation in which the first and second mates were injured, and another steamer, which recently figured in a mutiny and a collision, was libeled as it cast anchor.

The Norwegian skipper Sverre Aspass, commander of the Nivareid, was freed of assault charges at a magistrate's hearing late in the day, but was held pending arrangements by the vice consul for his deportation.

Second Mate Hjalman Virik, beaten and cut by Aspass yesterday, refused to prosecute, and the first mate, Hjalmar Jacobsen, was at a hospital with a bullet wound in a leg. Virik testified the skipper apparently was temporarily deranged.

Deputy Federal marshals swarmed aboard the American steamship Hopatcong as it arrived from Russia and turned it over to a receiver appointed by the Federal court as the result of three libels filed against the vessel and the Jersey-American Steamship Co., Inc., the owners.

One of the libels was by the Shipping Board and alleged that the interest due on the purchase price had not been paid.

The Hopatcong figured in an alleged mutiny in the Black Sea in October, in which the captain was injured. Thirteen men later deserted at Novorossisk. Two days before Christmas the ship was in a collision at Istanbul.

Seven alien seamen were ordered to

World's Auto Speed King Will Be Guest Here Today

Campbell, Whose 245-Mile-an-Hour Record Strengthened Napier Motors in Fight With Rolls-Royce, to Attend Capital Luncheon.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Capt. Malcolm Campbell, daring Britisher who has traveled faster on land than any other human being, will be honored in Washington today by public officials and leaders of the local automobile club. Arriving in Washington at 7:30 o'clock this morning, Capt. Campbell will be presented to President Hoover at the White House at noon. Afterward the speed king will be guest of honor at a luncheon given by motor club executives.

In setting a new land mark of 245.733 miles an hour at Daytona, Fla., last week Capt. Campbell regained the world's land speed championship which he held for a few weeks in 1928. To do so, he broke the record of 231 miles an hour held by the late Sir Henry O. D. Seagrave, an Englishman, who was knighted for his record set in 1929 over the same course.

An interesting sidelight on Capt. Campbell's achievement in Florida is the role it plays in one of the keenest industrial struggles in England at the moment. Directly engaged in the conflict are the Rolls-Royce and Napier companies, both builders of aircraft engines. Indirectly, it is a competition between England and the rest of the world for air, land, and water speed supremacy for the effect that such supremacy will have upon the sale of British products in foreign markets.

The specific battle between the Rolls-Royce and Napier companies has as its objective the choice of its engines for the Schneider Cup air-

Employes Tell of Liquor.

This testimony was given by Clarence Osterman, who declared he was night manager of the garage.

Glassman and the others are alleged to have used the garage and another on Fourteenth street northwest near U street as depots where liquor was delivered and distributed.

Other testimony during the day was given by Elmer O'Hara, former bookkeeper for the Glassman garages and rent-a-car services. O'Hara, the first witness, told a story about deliveries of liquors at the garages and about his bookkeeping activities.

On cross-examination, he admitted he had been asked to resign from a local bank because of gaming activities. He also admitted that he told the Government what he knew about the alleged Glassman gang "to save myself from prosecution by the Government."

Osterman is expected to continue his testimony today, with indications that the case will not reach the jury under two or three weeks.

Strike Leadership In Danville Rapped

Circulars Are Distributed by Group Believed to Be Communists.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 10.—Danville was flooded overnight by mimeographed dodgers signed "A Committee of Disgusted Strikers," but believed to have been distributed by those adhering to the Communist wing of organized textile workers.

A number of serious charges were leveled against the leadership of the United Textile Workers. "We are stronger than the law," one sentence said, and it was charged that the strike here was lost because the workers did not insist on mass picketing.

Another statement was that "some day we will take over the mills and run them ourselves like we are doing in Russia." The police were unable to find who distributed the dodgers.

The virtual destruction of a 5,000-horsepower steam turbine in the power plant of the Dan River Mills yesterday morning was officially disclosed today, with narrow escapes by two men. Supt. George Robertson said the disaster was due to an internal defect in the current generating portion of the machine and that there was no suspicion of sabotage.

Boy Fatally Hurt When Hit by Auto

Maryland Youth, 14, Dies in Hospital Following Road Accident.

Boyd Burdette, 14, of Boyds Station, Md., was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Upton F. Gladhill, Browningsville, Md. The boy died yesterday at the Frederick City Hospital, where he was taken after the accident by the ambulance of Warner E. Pumphrey, Rockville undertaker.

According to the story told Corporal Roy Bodmer and Policeman W. H. Merson, of Rockville police headquarters, the boy was walking along the road between Buck Lodge and Boyds near Buck Lodge. As the machine driven by Gladhill started to pass, the boy attempted to run across the road and ran into the side of the car. The impact threw the boy to the concrete roadway. The ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital where he was found to have a fractured skull. He died about three hours later.

The boy is the son of John Burdette, farmer of Boyds Station. Bernard D. Gladhill, brother of the driver, was riding in the car at the time of the accident. Gladhill was released on his own recognizance pending action of State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, who is investigating the case.

Japanese Women Get Inning in Diet

Occasion Marks Appearance of Civil Rights Bill to Give Them Vote.

Tokyo, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Women had their inning in the Japanese Diet today.

The occasion was the initial appearance of the government's women's civil rights bill which virtually grants equal rights with men in administration of villages, towns and cities to 15,500,000 female subjects.

The bill was explained by Kenzo Adachi, home minister, to one of the largest crowds of women in the history of the Japanese Parliament. The women jammed the visitors' gallery of the lower house.

Due to repeated delays of other business, the bill was not reached until evening, but the women with kimono sleeves rolled up as if they meant business, held their ground intact, full of anticipation for a skirmish.

The women's citizenship bill would enfranchise all women of 25, also qualify them for election to municipal assemblies and honorary posts of mayor, with the provision in the latter case that husbands give consent.

Observers predicted passage was virtually assured in the lower house.

However, it is not known definitely just what form the plan will take.

FATHER IS JAILED IN BABY'S BURNING

Prince Georges Program for School Building to Be Arranged Soon.

COUNTY PLANS BUDGET

Although his wife claims that he tried to put their 21-month-old baby in the stove, no charge has been placed against Paul Huffman, of Brentwood. He is in the Bladensburg Jail, however, and will face a drunk and disorderly charge in Hyattsville Police Court today.

Policeman R. E. Brown said that the man's wife was not in the room at the time she says the child was burned. She was in another room when she heard the child scream and heard the door of the stove shut. She ran in and found her husband and the child in the room. The baby was badly but not fatally burned.

Policeman Brown says that the man was drunk when he went to the house shortly afterward, and that Huffman would not make any statement as to what he had done. Huffman was free on bond of $100 on an earlier charge of being drunk and disorderly when he was rearrested. Dr. Leonard Hyas is attending the child.

The school building program for Prince Georges County will be drawn up when the school board meets with the delegation to the State Legislature and the county commissioners on February 18 in Annapolis.

This date was set yesterday by Kent R. Mullikin, leader of the county delegation. The joint meeting is set for 10 o'clock. It is expected that only a few of the many requests for new schools and additions will be granted this year, as it is not likely that another bond issue will be approved.

A tentative budget for operating expenses for the school system for the year beginning next August was presented to the school board yesterday by Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools. Its contents will not be disclosed until it had been presented to the county commissioners at their next meeting.

Two trips daily will be made between Croome and Marlboro by the school bus driven by Harry Tayman, it was decided. This will be necessary to transport the extra pupils which have enrolled in the Marlboro consolidated school. He will be allowed $80 a month extra for this service.

New trustees were appointed at two colored schools to take the place of others whose time had expired or who had died. At the Glenarden School, William B. Clark takes the place of Gussie Hamilton, and at Fletchertown, Soloman Grayson will replace John Thomas. A delegation from the Aquasco colored school appeared to ask the construction of a new three-room building at that point. They were told that their request would be considered with the others.

Permission was given to use the Olive street school in Hyattsville for a Bible class next July, if the application was approved by the trustees of the school. Mrs. H. M. Sturgis, principal of the school, made the application. The trustees of the Danville colored school asked and received $15 for improvements to the well at that institution.

Possibility that electric lights would be installed in the Brentwood School was seen in the order to have estimates made of the cost. This improvement has been requested several times by patrons of the school.

The county commissioners of Prince Georges will devote March 2, 3 and 4 to a consideration of the county's budget for the next year, it was announced at the meeting yesterday of the board. All bills against the county must be in the hands of the clerk by that time.

Chief Deputy Tom Garrison appeared before the board yesterday to ask that the county buy a complete fingerprint and photographic outfit for the identification of criminals. He said that the outfit would cost about $100 if bought through the Washington Police Department. While the commissioners did not approve the purchase, it is considered likely that it will be bought. Garrison was told to find out the exact cost of the equipment.

A letter from the Housekeeper's Club of Decatur Heights accompanied a resolution adopted by that club indorsing the consolidated almshouse for the Western Shore. The letter, which was signed by the president of the club, Mrs. Emery Leonard, and the resolution was referred to the county's delegation in the State Legislature.

The Suburban Sanitary Commission answered complaints about the condition of streets in Maryland Park by saying that they had not wanted to do the work which caused the torn-up condition of the highways. Residents of that section had protested to the commissioners about the large piles of dirt left in certain streets.

The Sanitary Commission reminded the board that they had wanted to postpone the work until spring, when the dirt could be removed, but that property owners insisted that the conduits be laid at once.

Another letter from the commission asked the board to include a provision for a 10-inch water main in the proposed bridges over the Northeast Branch in Riverdale. These bridges will be built by the State Roads Commission in the spring.

Howard S. Slater was appointed a constable in the Berwyn district by unanimous action of the board. The commissioners also decided that no more positions as constable should be filled until the vacancy had been advertised for 30 days. This has been the practice in the past, although it has not been followed recently.

Led by William Oursler, a delegation appeared to ask a bridge on Thrifts road over Balls Branch, in Surratts. The construction would cost from $600 to $800. The board took it under consideration. D. Grams also appeared as a representative of Cottage City to protest against recent construction which sends a flood of storm water into the streets of that town.

The report of the county police court for January was received by the board from James W. Lauderdale, deputy clerk. He transmitted a total of $5,874.85 received from fines, although only $1,792.80 of the sum goes to the commissioners, the rest going to the State for violations of motor vehicle laws.

Judge J. Chew Sheriff heard 442 cases and disposed of 427 of them. Violations of motor laws accounted for 341 of these cases, 266 of them being tried in Hyattsville and 48 in Marlboro.

The commissioners ordered that in the future all orders for supplies for county agencies should go through James Heal, the clerk of the board.

An absolute divorce from Cecil Ione Dale was granted yesterday to Russel L. Dale, of Hyattsville, by a decree handed down by the circuit court. Mr. Dale charged that his wife had deserted him several years ago. Bird H. Dolby was his attorney.

After hearing a talk by Mrs. J. Enos Ray, the Mellwood Women's Club yesterday passed a resolution indorsing the proposal to erect a consolidated almshouse in the western part of the State. Mrs. Ray was one of the committee appointed by the governor to investigate the feasibility of merging the county institutions.

Mrs. Irving Bowie read a paper on Abraham Lincoln, and there was a musical program. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lansdale G. Sasscer.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives and author of the American's Creed, will be chief speaker at a flag presentation to be held at the new Mount Rainier High School next Thursday at 2:30.

The flag, which is given by the Junior Order of American Mechanics, will be presented by Bird H. Dolby. Forrest P. Blunt, principal of the school, will make the speech of acceptance. Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools and members of the school board are also expected to be present. In addition to pupils in the high school, the fifth and sixth grades of the Mount Rainier-Brentwood School will also be there.

DROUGHT SUFFERERS AIDED BY RED CROSS

Clothing Donated in Capital Is Repaired and Sent by Workers' Group.

IS BEING SHIPPED FREE

Workers at local headquarters of the American Red Cross have sent 8,293 garments to drought stricken areas in the past three weeks, and 1,500 more garments are being prepared, it was reported yesterday.

Many of these garments have been given to the Red Cross by Washington families, and the clothing has been altered for children's use by a small group of workers at the chapter headquarters, 1730 E street northwest.

The clothing has been sent free by the American Railway Express and the various railways to Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, Louisiana, North Carolina and Alabama. Requests for more clothing from these States are being received daily, it is said.

Clothing is not being sent to Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma from the local chapter because the needs of these States are receiving attention from chapters in large Middle Western cities. The garments sent from here include shoes and stockings, as well as dresses and warm coats.

More clothing is needed, and collection will be made at any home in the District, it is announced.

expenditure of anti-Smith funds in the 1928 campaign.

Chairman Nye, of the committee, has summoned three Virginia bank officials. The committee is acting unbishop.

Bishop Cannon forestalled a similar investigation of his campaign activities before the Senate lobby committee last year by challenging its jurisdiction.

"We want to find what use was made by Bishop Cannon of the campaign funds," said Senator Nye last night.

The bankers to appear today are: Perry Seavy, vice president of the American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond; B. T. White, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Blackstone, Va., and J. A. Booker, cashier of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., of Blackstone.

SENATORS ATTACK ACCORD ON RELIEF

(Democrat), Oklahoma, joined the attack on the compromise.

The Oklahoman, who had not concluded a lengthy speech at adjournment, complained that there was "not a mouthful of food" in the loan compromise. He argued that not a single hungry person could get a meal from the appropriation.

"Where are my colleagues who said they would stay here all summer if necessary to obtain genuine relief for the suffering?" he asked.

"If I were a poor fellow without collateral, could I get any of this money? I have asked this question so often without receiving an answer that I am entitled to conclude that no man or woman can get a mouthful of food under this proposal unless he or she has security."

Reading a letter from Chairman Wood of the House appropriations committee concerning the $20,000,000 loan proposal, the Oklahoman said it failed to make any mention of providing food.

PEACE HOPES SEEN BY INDIAN COUNCIL

Bengal Legislative Body Is First to Approve Plan for Dominion.

GANDHI SENDS DELEGATE

Calcutta, India, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Two important developments marked the Indian political situation today and gave a new shadow of hope that the negotiations now going on for a settlement will eventually succeed.

The first was at Calcutta where the Bengal legislative council adopted almost unanimously a resolution welcoming the round-table conference declaration of Premier Ramsay MacDonald in which he outlined a plan for a modified dominion status. The council was the first legislative body in India to voice such an opinion.

The second development was at Allahabad. There the national congress leader, Mahatma Gandhi invited M. R. Jayakar, one of the roundtable delegates who accepted the MacDonald declaration, to go there from Bombay and take part in the conversations over India's future now going on.

This invitation was regarded as a sign that might indicate an eventual personal meeting between Gandhi and the viceroy, Lord Irwin.

Such a meeting might result in frank discussion that would help to remove the Nationalist leader's doubts as to Britain's good faith in dealing with his country.

Mall Tracks Parley Scheduled for Today

Another conference of District and Federal authorities on the disposition of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway tracks in the Mall Triangle area will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the office of William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel for the Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Roberts has drafted a bill in accordance with proposals made at a previous parley and will submit it for approval. The measure provides for the payment by the Federal Government for the railway equipment. Representatives of the Treasury Department, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the District Commissioners, the utilities body, and the railway line will be present.

Eleven Cleansed Lepers To Be Freed in Louisiana

Motion Picture Cameras Barred From Scriptural Symbolic Ceremony Which Will Mark Event; Identity of Inmates Kept Secret.

(Associated Press.)

Release of eleven lepers from the Carville, La., leprosarium has been ordered by Surgeon General Cumming of the Public Health Service. This is the largest number ever freed at one time from the institution, the only one of its kind in the United States.

The surgeon general's order, which has been mailed to Carville, was based on scientific certification that the lepers had been restored to health, and no longer were a public menace.

The 11 who come from eight different States, make a total of 89 lepers rehabilitated in the ten years the institution has been administered by the Public Health Service. The time they had spent in the leprosarium varied from eleven months to six years.

A symbolic ceremony of rejoicing at the cleansing of the leper, during which his pathway is strewen with flowers and garlands are hung about his neck, has grown up at the semi-tropic spot where Louisiana maintained a leper colony many years before the Federal Government took it over.

Public health officials said there would be the largest festival in history when the surgeon general's letter arrives at Carville.

Requests of motion picture concerns to film the ceremony have been refused by the Public Health Service which protects the identity of all inmates, permitting them to take assumed names "and no questions asked."

ESCAPING CONVICT HELD IN MARLBORO

Henry H. Hobbs, Listed as "Desperate Criminal," Found on Farm.

$1,000 REWARD OFFERED

Captured at the point of a pistol on the Providence Hospital Farm, near Silver Hill, Md., last night, Henry H. Hobbs, who is described in police circulars as a "desperate criminal" who would not hesitate to shoot his way to freedom, was rushed to the jail at Marlboro for safe keeping.

The arrest was made by "Sheriff" Tom Garrison, picturesque peace officer of Prince Georges County, who had received a tip that the man was working on the farm as a laborer. The sheriff scorned aid in making the arrest, thought the circular containing information about Hobbs described him as one of the most desperate and resourceful criminals in New Hampshire's history.

Hobbs, who readily admitted that he was the man whose picture was on the circular, has been convicted of robbery and assault in New Hampshire, and was sent to the State hospital at Concord five years ago for alleged criminal assault. He escaped from the hospital January 8 and has been working on the hospital farm since arriving here a few days after he escaped. He was going under the name of Anderson at the farm, and he is also known as George H. Wood.

Hobbs was surprised by Garrison while he was sitting in an arm chair reading a paper. A reward of $1,000 will be paid Sheriff Garrison for the arrest, New Hampshire authorities wired.

Children Suffer In Crisis, Is Claim

Specialist Cites Effect of World Situation on Juveniles.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Prof. Franz von Groer, child specialist of the University of Lemberg, Poland, said today that the economic crisis all over the world has sent the curve of disease among children soaring.

"It is the children who pay," he said, on arriving to deliver a series of lectures at the University of Illinois Medical College. "Tuberculosis, rickets and several other dangerous diseases in children increase in direct proportion to unemployment and poverty."

"All great national calamities reflect directly in the upcurve of children's diseases. The great war flooded Europe with nervous diseases in children. Undernourishment and the aggravated nervousness of the parents produced similar symptoms in the children."

Primaries Are Set By Idaho Measure

Bill Backed by Borah Lacks Only Governor's Name to Become Law.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A direct primary law, advocated for years by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), was on its way to the statute books today with only the signature of Gov. C. Ben Ross wanting to make it effective.

Sponsors of the measure, demanded in the Democratic platform last fall, considered the approval of the Democratic executive assured. Senator Borah's advocacy of the direct primary system in past years has aligned him against the State leaders of his party, and his arguments in its behalf were extensively used by the Democrats in the last campaign.

The bill provides for a primary election in May preceding general elections, at which candidates for all county, State and congressional offices shall be nominated. Party conventions heretofore have chosen the nominees.

Delegation Seeks Work For Capital Decorators

A delegation from Local Union No. 368 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers yesterday called on Chairman Frederic A. Delano, of the District unemployment committee. Chairman Arthur Woods, of the President's unemployment committee, in an effort to locate jobs for more than 500 experienced painters reported out of work.

Col. Woods informed them $80,000 will be expended at an early date on painting and decorating the new Commerce Department Building, providing jobs for a number of their group. David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, said $38,000 soon will be spent on painting the dome of the Capitol and the interior of the House Office Building. C. W. Gaines led the delegation of painters.

HOUSE IS DISTURBED IN REDS' EJECTION

Comrades Try to Speak in Public Galleries and Are Quelled.

PETITION NOT PRESENTED

ment relief, which they neglected to bring with them.

The committee of fourteen white and colored men and women, who failed to gain the floor of the House or an audience with Speaker Longworth, debated last night whether they will today strive to get into the Senate or present their demands to Vice President Curtis or to again try to see Mr. Longworth.

Alfred Wagenknecht, who headed the delegation, said that the decision on this question will be made early today. It is probable, he said, that the committee may abandon all efforts to gain an audience in either house and may satisfy themselves with a statement protesting their reception.

The delegates were urged to go back to their cities and plan demonstrations to be held February 25, to be known as international labor day. There will be another demonstration in Washington on that date.

Disappointed in their wait to hear the Communists on the floor of the House, about 50 who had crowded into the gallery became restive. Nels Hjar, a carpenter, 48 years old, of Chicago, Ill., scribbled on the border of a newspaper, "You are to speak next," and handed it to one of his "comrades."

Carpenter Is Ejected.

Representative Oliver, of Alabama, was speaking at the time on the naval appropriations bill. Bert Kennedy, a doorkeeper, ejected Hjar. Soon afterward, Fred Kearns, 30 years old, an ironworker, of McKeesport, Pa., arose in the gallery and said: "I want to protest against the arrest ——" but the rest of his address was lost in a fistful of knuckles which Kennedy placed over the speaker's mouth.

Kearns later said that he wanted to protest against the ejection of Hjar. Freda Jackson, 35 years old, of New York City, and Nicholas Blattner both attempted to amplify Kearns' brief remarks, but they, too, were placed outside the gallery. They were taken to the office of Sergeant at Arms Rodgers, where they were told that addresses were not permitted from the gallery. They were then escorted off the grounds.

Apart from the preparations made by the police for any disorderly eventuality and the slight disturbance in the gallery, there were no evidences of disorder. There were, however, a large number of National Capitol Police, Metropolitan Police, and Secret Service men gathered about the building.

Given Police Escort.

Instead of shunting the committee of fourteen from the grounds, Maj. Henry G. Pratt accorded them a police escort. They were led to the office of Sergeant-at-Arms Rodgers and told that Mr. Rodgers was representing Speaker Longworth; and if they wished, they could leave their petition with him.

Wagennecht, Sol Harper (colored Communist) and Sam Nison, spokesmen for the committee, demanded that they be given twenty minutes on the floor of the House. When told that this is never done they suggested that the House adjourn for twenty minutes so that their speakers could make addresses. This also being denied, they then demanded to see Speaker Longworth.

Representative Carroll Beedy, of Maine, told the committee that they had the same right to petition Congress as any other group, so long as they proceeded in an orderly manner. Mr. Beedy added that no group is accorded the privilege of the House floor.

Longworth Is Sought.

Mr. Beedy then went to the floor of the House and asked Speaker Longworth whether he would see the delegation. He brought back word that Mr. Longworth would see them if they would make an appointment with him. He would be glad to see them, he said, but the only word he had of their visit was a note by messenger at noon saying the committee would arrive at 1 o'clock to make "demands" and that he did not feel that this was the proper request.

Mr. Beedy then said: "This Congress has appropriated $116,000,000 for work, $2,000,000 for public health in the drought-stricken States and $20,000,000 to feed the farmer. I think that that is going pretty far."

Wagenknecht again demanded to present the petition to the Speaker on the floor of the House. But again being refused, he agreed to present the "demands" of the group to Miss Mildred E. Reeves, secretary to the Speaker.

Met at Speaker's Rooms.

At the entrances to the Speaker's rooms, the group was met by Maj. Henry G. Pratt and Inspector William S. Shelby. The room was packed with newspapermen and spectators. Here Wagenknecht again asked to see Speaker Longworth; but Miss Reeves told him he was on the floor. Harper and Nisen then sought to interrogate Miss Reeves on the absence of the Speaker.

Mr. Rodgers then interposed and said: "If you have a petition to present, do so."

Wagenknecht and Harper then recalled that they had not brought the petition with them. They had left it, they said, at the headquarters where the delegates met on C street near Third northwest. All the committee then left, protected by a police escort. Soon after their departure, the disturbances in the gallery started.

However, Mr. Wagenknecht left with Miss Reeves a copy of the "demands," which asked $15 a week for every unemployed person, with $3 additional for each dependent. It also asked free rent, gas and electric light, fuel, and transportation for the unemployed.

Scheme for Financing.

This scheme, they proposed to finance by the recall of all appropriations for military purposes and by a "graduated capital levy on all capital and property in excess of $25,000."

On the Senate Wing of the Capitol, Senator Blaine protested against the spectacle of so many policemen guarding the Capitol against "an imaginary enemy."

Back at their headquarters the delegates listened to telegrams sent from nearly a score of cities in the country in which support was expressed for the aims of the group which yesterday sought to reach the House floor. Among the telegrams was one from Cleveland, another from New York City, and another from Boston.

Most of the group dispersed last night for the trip back to the cities which they claimed to represent.

The Communist anthem, the "Internationale," closed the sessions.

Soviet Purchases Held Jeopardized

"Almost Daily" Attacks on Russian Imports Hit by Amtorg Official.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Continuation of trade with Soviet Russia is jeopardized by "almost daily" attacks on introduction of Soviet products in America, Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, said today.

Bogdanov disclosed that Amtorg purchased more than $38,000,000 worth of merchandise in Illinois during 1930, double the total for 1929. "In Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio we bought $72,000,000 worth of goods last year," he said. "The total for the United States was $130,000,000. Compare this with $30,000,000 worth of Soviet products sold in the United States in 1930.

"The five-year plan," Bogdanov said, "does not have for its aim the undermining of American economy or that of any other country."

Utility Quiz Nears In Keystone State

Senate Passes Resolution After Pinchot Attacks Service Commission.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The State Senate today, without a record vote, passed a resolution for an investigation of the Public Service Commission by the Senate judiciary committee. The resolution also called for an investigation of alleged political activities of public utilities so far as they affect the commission.

The action of the Senate is the result of the attack by Gov. Gifford Pinchot on the present Pennsylvania commission, which he has characterized as the "catspaw of corporations."

Last week the House of Representatives, which is controlled by the friends of the governor, passed a resolution of its own to make the investigation. The House resolution is in the Senate waiting action, but instead of taking it up, the Senate, which was organized by senators opposed to Mr. Pinchot, decided to have the Senate alone investigate the commission.

UNITED STATES BANK OFFICERS INDICTED

Closed Institution's Lawyer Resigns Post as Counsel After Accusation.

SEVEN FACING CHARGES

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Isidor Kresel, indicted today with seven other officers of the closed Bank of United States, resigned tonight as special counsel in the magistrates' court investigation.

Samuel Seabury, referee in the appellate division's inquiry into the magistrates' courts, announced that Kresel had resigned and that the resignation had been accepted. He expressed regret at the circumstances leading to the resignation.

Those indicted were:

Mr. Kresel, director and legal adviser of the bank.

Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank.

Saul Singer, executive vice president.

C. Stanley Mitchell, chairman of the board.

Simon Kugel, vice chairman and a director of Bankus Corporation, a bank affiliate.

Henry W. Pollock, director of the bank.

Herbert Singer, brother of Saul Singer, and a clerk in Kresel's law office.

What effect the charge against Kresel would have on the magistrates' inquiry was uncertain. Samuel Seabury, referee of the inquiry, withheld comment.

The hearings already have resulted in the forced resignations of three members of the lower bench. The indictments were obtained on evidence submitted by Max D. Steuer, serving as a special assistant district attorney.

The men are to be arraigned tomorrow in general sessions court, but Mr. Kresel probably will not be there. He got out of a sickbed to testify before the grand jury yesterday, and today he was back in it.

District Attorney Crain announced he would ask $100,000 bail each for the Singers and $10,000 apiece for the others. The trial probably will not be held before fall.

Sykes was found to be carrying a loaded revolver, according to the police. He was held on a technical charge of investigation at the Fourteenth Precinct station, pending an investigation which is being made.

TOWN HEADS OFFER TO HELP CAR LINE

Falls Church Councilmen Seek to Save Fairfax-Arlington Route.

RED CROSS MEETING SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Falls Church town council at its meeting offered to assist the directors of the Arlington-Fairfax Railroad Co. in any manner possible to insure the continuation of street car service into Washington over Highway Bridge. The council believes that the people have a vital interest in the continuance of this enterprise. Councilman Julius Parmelee, acting president of the railway company during the illness of M. E. Church, and who has handled most of the negotiations between the railway company and the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia, stated that every effort is being made to continue operations over the Highway Bridge into downtown Washington. He declared that if no means are found of maintaining service over the bridge the alternative of establishing bus service from the Virginia end of the line is being considered. A second solution of the problem that is now being considered is the routing of all traffic of the Arlington-Fairfax line to Rosslyn to connect with the Capital Traction Co. at Key Bridge. He stated questionnaires are to be placed in the cars this week asking all passengers to indicate the point in Washington to which each travels so that the company may determine the logical location of its terminal. The passengers will also be asked whether they will continue to use the road if the cars are routed through Rosslyn and Georgetown.

Councilman Charles E. Gage, chairman of the roads committee, suggested that a special committee of the council be appointed to rename many of the streets and recommended that the name of Jefferson street be changed to Mosby street. The council appropriated $1,000 for use on the roads, and the appropriation for contingent expenses was increased $125.26. Councilman J. V. Turner was requested to call to the attention of Resident State Highway Engineer R. I. Mount the points on Washington street where the roadbed has not been restored to its original condition since the installation of gas mains.

Councilman Turner reported that the town has sold 70,000 gallons of water during the last month, half of which was sold direct from the taps to customers serving themselves and the other half was delivered to homes by tank wagons. The water distribution has gradually decreased with the cold weather, and distribution has been cut from six to five days each week. Turner reported that he is trying to obtain an additional cut in the cost of the water service by requiring the consumers to secure larger receptacles and confine tank distribution to four days a week. To date this service has cost the town $334.

The council voted to renew its membership in the League of Virginia Municipalities. Mayor L. P. Daniel outlined several projects in which the council is using the facilities of the league. He turned over to the road committee a digest of the traffic regulations of the State prepared by the league and requested that the committee prepare recommendations for modification of the town's traffic ordinances to bring them in line with the State traffic laws. He also suggested that the council request the league's legal department for assistance in amending the town's charter so as to permit the town council to act as a tax equalization board.

The rector and members of the vestry of Pohick Church are at present engaged in trying to find a solution to the problem of what is to become of its collection that is to be taken on Sunday, February 22.

Last Sunday the vestry and rector issued an appeal to all the Episcopal churches throughout this county to donate their collections on that day to their individual relief organizations. Pohick Church of Truro Parish had already pledged its collection at the special George Washington memorial services which is to be held in the afternoon of February 22, to the Board of Public Welfare of Fairfax County for distribution to the poor.

Since making the pledge they have found out that the Bishop of Virginia intends to attend the services and under an old custom when the bishop is present at any services he is entitled to the collection for the bishops' fund.

The services at Pohick Church on George Washington's birthday anniversary will be attended by the Grand Master of Masons in Virginia, members of the Grand Lodge of Virginia and by the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple Association, which will open its sessions in the Masonic Temple in Alexandria the following day.

The Mayflower Rebekah Lodge will meet this evening in the lodge hall at Accotink. The new officers will be in the chairs for the first time.

Mrs. Edward D. Vosbury, of Merrifield, chairman of the special Red Cross drought relief drive committee in Fairfax County, has called a special meeting of that committee for this morning at 11 o'clock in the courthouse at Fairfax. She urges the committee members and all branch chairmen to bring all the donations they had received to this meeting so that a full report of all collections may be forwarded to the national Red Cross headquarters.

The quarterly meeting of the Home Demonstrations Agents Advisory Council will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. James U. Kincheloe in Fairfax. The business meeting will be preceded by a luncheon for the members of the council.

The regular meeting of the Centerville Grange will be held this evening in the auditorium of the Oakton Schoolhouse. The recently organized drill team assisted by Oswald Carper and Miss Florence Gifford of the Great Falls Grange of Forestville will confer the first and second degrees on a large class of candidates.

The Baptist Women's Mission Union of the Woodlawn Baptist Church will meet this afternoon in the church at Woodlawn. Arrangements are being made for a study course, using as a text the book entitled, "The Search for Souls."

Ashley Money, chairman of the good of the order committee, will be in charge, assisted by Mrs. Catherine Leigh, Miss Louise Millard, Mrs. Margaret Day and Miss Emma Millard.

H. H. Ankers, the new master of the Pioneer Grange at Masonville, has announced the appointment of the following standing committees: Building committee, Pierre de Chauncey, chairman; A. H. Holland and Carl Robey; audit committee, Martin T. Webb; Mrs. Mabel Crandall and Mrs. Thompson; sick committee, Miss Antoinette Cornelius, Mrs. H. M. Gaston and Mrs. Lester Powell.

The annual business meeting of the stockholders of the Great Falls Grange Building Corporation will be held this evening in the Grange Hall at Forestville. The annual election of officers for the ensuing year will also take place at this time.

ALEXANDRIA RECTOR IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Rev. Edgar Carpenter, 63, Succumbs Suddenly; Ill Two Years.

HIGH IN LODGE CIRCLES

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

The Rev. Edgar Carpenter, 63 years old, for the last 26 years rector of Grace Episcopal Church, and one of the best known and most highly esteemed ministers in this section, died suddenly Monday night, a victim of angina pectoris, from which he had been a sufferer for two years. His death came as a decided shock to his many friends and parishioners, few of whom knew of the state of his health.

Mr. Carpenter was stricken while attending a meeting of Alexandria Lodge of Elks, of which he was a past exalted ruler and chaplain. He was given first-aid treatment by Dr. W. Lewis Schaffer, and later, having apparently improved, was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Duncan. He died, however, within 10 minutes after reaching the Duncan home. The body was taken to the Wheatley funeral home, and funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, from Grace Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Bishop Coadjutor of Virginia, and the Right Rev. Harry St. George Tucker, Bishop of Virginia, are expected to reach Alexandria tomorrow, and will conduct the services. Members of the various fraternal organizations of which the Rev. Mr. Carpenter was a member will attend.

The Alexandria lodge of Elks held a lodge of sorrow last night, and completed arrangements for attending the funeral.

Mr. Carpenter for many years has taken an active part in fraternal circles. In addition to being a past exalted ruler of the local lodge of Elks, and chaplain, he has been State chaplain of the Elks; he was a thirty-second degree Mason, a member and chaplain of Andrew Jackson Lodge, No. 120; of Mount Vernon Chapter, No. 14, Royal Arch Masons; Old Dominion Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar; Acca Temple, Mystic Shrine, the Virginia Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons; Potomac Lodge of Odd Fellows; Liberty Rebekah Lodge, No. 16, Rebekahs, and the Seminole Tribe of Red Men. He was a member of the board of trustees of the Virginia Educational Society, and the Alexandria Ministerial Association.

Mr. Carpenter studied for the ministry at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, where he was ordained, and his early parishes were located in Virginia, Maryland and Kentucky. He came to Alexandria as rector of Grace Church, succeeding the Rev. Clarence K. Ball, in 1904. Under his rectorship the church has made great strides, and it was during his term that the parish hall was erected in 1922.

Mr. Carpenter was a widower, his wife, Mrs. Susie Upshur Nottingham Carpenter, of Eastville, Va., having died five years ago. He was born in Baltimore on December 18, 1867, and is survived by two brothers and a sister, Allen Carpenter, of Taylors Island, Md.; George Carpenter, of Tampico, Md., and the sister, who resides in Germany.

Complete funeral arrangements are awaiting the arrival of Mr. Carpenter's brother today.

The hearing of the case of the Alexandria Water Co., which concern seeks an increase in the rates for water consumption within the city limits of Alexandria, which was set for March 2 before the State corporation commission in Richmond, has been postponed until March 28, according to advices received yesterday by Attorney Albert V. Bryan, who has been appointed to assist City Attorney Carl Budweskey in the prosecution of the case.

The city school board has been invited to meet with the city council at an informal meeting Thursday afternoon, for the purpose of considering the plans recently submitted by the school board to the council for the construction of a new high school building.

The proposed new structure, according to the plans submitted, will cost $325,000, with an additiofi to the annual budget of the city of some $50,000.

PROGRESS PLANNED FOR MONTGOMERY

State and County Aid Sought for Rockville Improvement Program.

SEWERS WILL BE ADDED

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Town officials of Rockville, county seat of Montgomery County, have prepared an extensive and varied program of improvements for the town which they believe State and county aid should be extended to make possible.

In presenting the program to the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday, Mayor J. Roger Spates pointed out that 10 per cent of the property in the town is owned by the county, and therefore, tax free. In addition the county seat should have an orderly and progressive program of development in order that it might reflect the importance of Montgomery County, the mayor said.

Part of the program which seeks additions to the water and sewage systems of the town is considered emergency matter and will be introduced at the State Legislature by State Senator Robert G. Hilton and Dr. George E. Edmonds, chairman of the county delegation to the House of Delegates. The town council would increase the water supply of the town by additional wells, standpipes and mains costing $50,000.

The town has a taxable basis of $1,800,000 and pays its share of county and State taxes and the town fathers feel that more State and county funds should be expended in the town.

Following is a list of the improvements asked by the town officials to widen all streets adjacent to the courthouse so as to permit angle parking; to construct curbs and concrete gutters at the cost of the county; improvement and widening of Monroe and Washington streets and Maryland avenue; to extend North Van Buren street from West Montgomery avenue to the corporate limits of the town and connect with the Frederick road by a cross street and to widen South Van Buren street and Great Falls road; extension of Monroe street north to the present Baltimore & Ohio viaduct and thence to Baltimore street; to widen Baltimore road and construct curbs and gutters; construct an overhead bridge so that an approach can be made by way of Reading avenue and side approaches by way of Grandin street; to widen State road and pave to take full width of road at intersection of Montgomery avenue and Washington road; to construct a new elementary school and purchase ground as a site for a new high school; widen jail lane. With the exception of widening State road and construction of the school, the improvements would not cost more than $130,000, the town officials stated.

Preliminary steps in the relief of drought sufferers of Montgomery County have been taken by the disaster relief committee of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Frank B. Severance, Gaithersburg banker, is chairman of the committee. A survey of the situation in the county will be the first step taken, and this work has been started.

Other members of the committee are State Senator Robert G. Hilton, president of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co. of Rockville; George M. Hunter, president of the Montgomery County National Bank, at Rockville; James D. King, of Germantown; Ledoux E. Riggs, of Laytonsville, and tto W. Anderson, county agricultural agent.

Persons found needing financial assistance in the purchase of seed, fertilizer, fuel and oil for tractors will be referred to the committee which is administering the $45,000,000 drought-relief funds in Montgomery County.

Those requiring food, clothing and other necessities will be given orders on local merchants. The orders will be prepared by subcommittee chairmen and forwarded to the county chairman, who will send them to Mrs. Helen Weedon, secretary. Mrs. Weedon will issue the orders after Miss Margaret P. Ansdell, county Red Cross nutrition worker, has made food selections. The bills will be paid with funds allotted by national headquarters.

Petitions for changes in assessment must be filed in writing under the oath of the person seeking the change with Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners, who will present them at the next regular meeting of the board. The commissioners will consider the application at a subsequent meeting and issue their decision. The clerk is to notify the petitioner of the date of such hearing. All vouchers and accounts to be paid by the board must be presented to the board at least three days before the regular meeting day at which payment is ordered. The changes were prepared by Capt. Road supervisors' accounts, commissioners' vouchers and all expense items coming before the board are included in the order.

The Rockville Police Court collected fines totaling $1,074.25 in criminal cases in January, according to the report of Judge Charles W. Woodward presented to the commissioners yesterday. The Montgomery County Board of Education at its meeting yesterday announced that the last obstacle to the completion of the addition to the Chevy Chase Elementary School has been removed through the reaching of an agreement with property owners whereby Valley place is to be closed. Work on the addition has been held up pending court action looking to closing the street. Through the efforts of Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome, an agreement was reached whereby the street can be dedicated to the county for school purposes. It is believed that early construction of the addition will result.

A delegation of residents from Glenmont and Wheaton appeared before the board to ask that three new classrooms be provided for the Glenmont School and the basement of the building be arranged so that cooking can be carried on there. The board told the delegation that two classrooms are included in the current improvement program and that it did not believe more could be added at this time.

A delegation from the Kensington Board of Trade appeared to press erection of a central high school in Kensington. Gerald H. Warthen, Louis Beall and William F. Walker appeared for the board of trade.

RAILROAD OFFICER DIES

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington County exceeded its quota of $1,000 for the drought relief by $322, said George A. Collier, chairman of the drought-relief committee of the Arlington County Red Cross Chapter, last night.

He attributed the success of the drive to the cooperation of the churches and public schools.

The report shows the churches contributed $460, the county schools $362 and individuals $500, making a total of $1,322.

Speaking at the monthly meeting of the Clarendon Citizens Association, Dr. Frank T. Stone, president of the Clarendon Trust Co., said that with the completion of the building program now being carried on by the Federal Government, which means between 15,000 and 30,000 additional clerks in the service, this section will be the key to the biggest building activity northern Virginia ever has seen.

With the opening of the new memorial bridge soon and the building of boulevards which will branch off from it, this section will be brought closer to the Nation's Capital, and there is bound to be an increase in population, Dr. Stone said. "In view of these things things it should be our duty to see to it that we are prepared to meet the needs of those who will come to enter the employ of the Government," he commented.

Dr. Sotne emphasized there should be closer cooperation with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in its plans for the development of the side of the Potomac.

As chairman of the special street lighting committee, Dr. Stone outlined a comprehensive program for installation of modern street lights on Wilson boulevard between Virginia and Taylor avenues, a distance of four blocks.

The committee was instructed to make further study of the subject and to submit reports showing costs.

William Holmes McGuffey died last night at his home in Falls Church.

Mr. McGuffey, who had been in the employ of the Southern twenty years, was assistant to the vice president in charge of traffic.

He came to Falls Church seven years ago from Cincinnati. He is survived by his wife.

SLAP AT BLUE LAWS STIRS LEGISLATURE

Bill Ready for Presentation at Annapolis; Marriage Regulation Urged.

WHIPPING POST SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 10.—A proposal to make women eligible for jury service in Maryland, making the whipping post as well as prison sentence the penalty imposed upon chicken thieves, further restrictions upon the issuance of marriage licenses and requiring the contracting parties to furnish medical certificates and a move to increase the pay of legislators, were among a group of measures that made their appearance in the Maryland General Assembly when it reconvened here today for the sixth week of its 90-day biennial session.

Meanwhile the lawmakers generally are all astir over the proposed measure to repeal the State-wide blue law, sponsored by Francis A. Michel, of Baltimore City, speaker of the House of Delegates, which he says is ready for introduction. The first flurry along this line came several days ago when a bill applicable to Baltimore City only and which affected principally Sunday moving pictures, was introduced.

Speaker Michel, however, thinks the scope of the repealer should be made State-wide and it would take in all forms of amusement, and perhaps apply to grocery stores. Representatives of the Lord's Day Alliance, led by Dr. W. W. Davis, already are marshaling their forces for a fight against this legislation.

Bill Unlikely to Pass.

The jury service for women bill was introduced by Delegate Farrington, of Montgomery County, by request. This measure is sponsored by the Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. John S. Whitehurst, president of that organization, was in the House chamber when it was presented. Various groups of women for and against this bill have been conducting an active campaign here for more than a week. The bill, according to those in a position to know, has little chance of enactment.

Delegate Oliver L. Metzerott, of Prince Georges County, author of the bill providing license regulations for roadside signs in the antibillboard campaign, presented another measure bearing on the subject. The new bill calls for strict enforcement of existing law, which fixes a penalty of $10 for signs illegally placed. The difficulty, however, has been that the present law requires that legal authority must witness the erection of misplaced signs. To get around this the new measure would make the mere existence of the sign prima facie evidence of violation.

The bill to raise the pay of assemblymen provides a constitutional amendment for submission to the electorate at the next general election. It was offered by Delegate Goodman, Baltimore City. The per diem would be increased from $5 to $15, and that of the presiding officers of the respective houses from $10 to $25. A raise in pay has been sought for many years. A bill embracing similar provisions was passed at the 1929 session, and the amendment was about ready to be placed on the ballot at the November election last year, when a discrepancy in the proceedings of its final enactment was discovered which nullified it.

Fought Two Years Ago.

Nor is the bill laying restrictions on issuance of marriage licenses a new move. Such proposed legislation was the subject of a bitter fight two years ago. Delegate Popp (Republican), Allegany County, is author of the bill presented today. It provides that 24 hours shall elapse from the time application for license is filed, and another 24 hours from the time of issuance of certificate until the time of the marital ceremony, and the additional provision that the prospective bride and bridegroom must furnish a certificate from a reputable physician that they are free from communicable diseases and otherwise in sound health.

Delegate Conway, Baltimore City, introduced the bill for punishing poultry thieves by fixing the penalty of twenty lashes at the whipping post or a prison term, or both, in the discretion of the convicting authority.

A State bond issue is authorized under the provisions of a bill offered by Senator Ridgley P. Melvin (Democrat), Anne Arundel County, to provide for the erection at Annapolis of a "memorial hall of records," for the preservation of historic records and documents of the State. The measure, which was drafted in conjunction with the program of the tercentenary commission arranging the forthcoming celebration of the founding of the Commonwealth, also provides for the erection of a suitable memorial at St. Marys City to commemorate the founding of the colony, and memorials of other historic incidents.

Will Hear Seat Contest.

A meeting of the House elections committee has been called for tomorrow at which time it is expected testimony will be heard in the contest over the right of Joseph C. Chaney (Republican), Calvert County, to a seat in the House. The contestant is Grafton D. C. Bailey, Democrat.

Representatives of the League of Women Voters from all parts of the State will gather here tomorrow to discuss the legislative program of interest to their organization. Miss Lavinia Engle, member of the Montgomery County delegation in the House, was formerly an official in the league.

panied by a flurry of bullishness in the wheat market, and July and September deliveries shot up about 2 and 3 cents a bushel. While bears were having difficulties in stocks, the upsurge of grain prices was accompanied by vague rumors that the great Russian bear was in trouble. While grain traders were quick to conclude that disturbances in Russia would tend to keep that country's wheat out of the world market, the rumors of political disturbances were utterly without confirmation.

The New Way Doctors Use For Fat

A Simple Gland Food

Modern doctors no longer advise starvation diet to the over-fat. Nor drugs to attack the fat. Science has found that a great cause of excess fat lies in a weakened gland. Thus comes a scant supply of a secretion which largely controls nutrition. Too much food goes to fat, too little to fuel and energy.

Doctors the world over now supply that lack, with the very factor long employed in Marmola prescription tablets.

Marmola is prepared by a famous medical laboratory, to supply the right factors at a low cost so all may have the benefit. People have used it for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results, and multitudes have thus attained the normal figures all desire.

No secrets about it. A book in each box gives the formula and tells you how and why it acts. As the pounds go, there comes new joy in living. Just because the body gets a factor that it needs.

Marmola costs only $1 a box at your drug store. Go get it and watch the results. Do that in justice to yourself. Do it because so many folks around you have benefited by it. Then tell others who need this help. Go start today.

BUS TERMINAL TEST CASE STARTS TODAY

Driver's Arrest Is Basis for Battle With Great Eastern Stages Line.

QUESTION OF AUTHORITY

Preliminary volleys will be fired today in Police Court in what may be a long-drawn-out fight between the Public Utilities Commission, backed by the Metropolitan Police Department, and the Great Eastern Stages bus line.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel for the commission, will prosecute the test case which is to be made of an arrest of a bus driver for failure to comply with the District traffic regulations at the new and unauthorized terminal at E street, near Fourteenth street.

At the preliminary hearing before Judge Ralph Given this morning, Ralph B. Fleharty, counsel for the bus company, will contest the prosecution on the ground of discrimination and will try to convince the court that other competitive interstate bus lines are not forced to obey the traffic code strictly. Later in the morning a conference is to be held in Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby's office.

The specific charge against the bus driver is based on an impossibility under the present arrangement. Arrested for failing to pull up within a foot of the curb while unloading and taking on passengers, as required, the driver could not have done so because there is an authorized traffic stand in front of the bus terminal.

The real issue at stake is whether an interstate bus company can defy the Utilities Commission in view of the ruling of the District Municipal Court in the Nevins Bus Line case that the commission has no authority to regulate out-of-town motor vehicles that have depots at Washington.

Great Eastern Stages applied for prmission to establish the terminal last November, but the application was refused because of the congestion at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Despite the refusal, the bus line prepared the depot and recently began operations there. The traffic congestion, as well as the defiance of the Utilities Commission and the violation of a traffic regulation, will be advanced by Mr. Roberts in prosecuting the case.

The bus company not being able to induce the Traffic Bureau to grant parking space, the busses have been stopping outside a line of taxicabs at the curb.

The direct challenge to District authorities also has stirred the District Commissioners and was responsible for preliminary steps toward a bus hearing. This has been postponed, however, pending outcome of the traffic bill.

Shoemaker Freed Of Burning Plant

Jury Acquits on Charge of Causing $100,000 Fire at Chemical Works.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 10.—Dewey Shoemaker was acquitted by a jury today of burning the plant of the Eastern Silica and Chemical Co., at Gore, last October 28, causing a loss estimated by John F. Penrose, president, at $100,000. Earl Fultz, a State witness, testified hearing a remark about Mr. Penrose offering Shoemaker $1,000 to do a job which would not take very long.

Mr. Shoemaker testified that although the statement was probable it had no bearing whatever on the fire, and was in regard to some information which Mr. Penrose desired regarding a certain officer of the corporation.

The defense explained removal of some machinery several days previously by evidence that it had been sold to Bester-Long Co. Hagerstown, Md., to be substituted with larger and modern machinery, which had been ordered. They also explained the prevalence of oil odor for several days by testimony that oil used in a Diesel engine had leaked from containers.

Wickersham's Aid To Discuss Report

H. W. Anderson to Explain Plan for Taking Profit From Liquor Sales.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Henry W. Anderson, member of the Wickersham Commission, will explain the commission's report and discuss his subreport on prohibition at a public meeting here next Tuesday night.

Mr. Anderson's proposed discussion of the report will be his first supplementary comment upon his widely discussed prohibition control plan. His plan, indorsed by five members of the commission, provided a system of national and State control designed to take the profit out of the sale of liquor.

The Anderson plan is modeled after the Bratt system, now used in Sweden, which was studied by the Richmond attorney during a recent visit to Europe.

PARKER GIRL FOUND; AIMED AT "CAREER"

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—All the mystery faded today and Florence Parker, 22, Yonkers heiress, was revealed as just another girl who felt the great world was the place in which to build an artist's career.

Strangely missing for sixteen days, the stepdaughter of a manufacturer's trust company officer had become the object of a far-flung police search, based on theories ranging from elopement to kidnaping.

She was found today in the Hotel Piccadilly, writing short stories in the shadow of Broadway's bright lights and attending lectures on the dramatic arts.

What she considered a family disagreement over her career prompted her to leave home, she said. There had been a misunderstanding with her stepfather, James MacDonough, she confided, and she had gained the impression she was a financial burden. But her parents denied there had been a family quarrel.

The persistence of Miss Parker's brother, Marvin, and a policewoman led to solution of the girl's absence. They traced telephone calls to her friends and established that the "Rose Dennis" registered at the Picadilly was the heiress.

plane races to be held in England this fall. In the event of 1929, the Rolls-Royce engines were selected by the British Air Ministry which financed the English entry. The result was that the Rolls-Royce engine became supreme in air speed contests with a record of 336 miles an hour in the cup race. Later, the victorious plane was flown to an official speed mark of 357 miles an hour.

This was after the Napier engines had powered the planes with which England won the race held in 1927.

Subsequently, the Rolls-Royce engine which had driven the supermarine plane to a record of 357 miles an hour was placed in a motor boat and piloted by Sir Henry Segrave to a world's record of 98.76 miles an hour.

Napier, however, still retained its supremacy on land with the mark of 231 miles an hour set by Sir Henry in 1929, also at Daytona. It was this mark which Capt. Campbell came to this country to exceed and thus to fortify Napier's position.

The competition between the two companies as reflected in events which are regarded everywhere as purely sporting ventures explains Capt. Campbell's lack of concern prior to the Daytona dash over the matter of financial arrangements.

The personal competition between Sir Henry and Capt. Campbell, both among the finest figures in the English sporting world, came to an end in the death of the former last year during the speed boat trials in which the present world's record was established.

Although America is definitely out of Schneider Cup racing, the leaders of the two branches of the air service will be guests at the luncheon in Capt. Campbell's honor. They are Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics and Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps.

Other guests will include Sir Ronald-Lindsay, the British Ambassador; the three District Commissioners, Sir Wilmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times; Theodore P. Noyes, Denys H. H. Smith, correspondent of the London Post; and Frederic William Wile. Ernest N. Smith, vice president of the A. A. A., will preside.

Capt. Campbell will leave this afternoon for New York. He will sail for London on the Mauretania on Friday.

Yorktown Records Reveal 78 Killed in French Army

Daughters of American Revolution Find That 26 More Lost Lives in Siege Than Formerly Noted; Two Tablets to Be Erected.

Seventy-eight Frenchmen, and not 52 as history records, lost their lives in the siege of Yorktown, the Sesquicentennial committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution made public here yesterday in announcing progress of comprehensive plans for participation in the Nation-wide celebration at Yorktown, October 16 to 19, 1932.

The announcement was made by Mrs. James T. Morris, of this city, national chairman of the committee, coincident with publication in The Washington Post yesterday morning of a dispatch from Versailles, France, citing discovery of a valuable document revealing names of men killed or wounded in the siege. The dispatch did not state the exact number of casualties.

Mrs. Morris likewise made public for the first time the plan of the D. A. R. to erect at the site of the notable surrender of Cornwallis two bronze tablets, one to the French and the other to the Americans who were slain or fatally wounded in the fighting there. The markers will be placed at the gateway leading to the national monument on the battle site, and will be dedicated in elaborate exercises as a feature of the celebration.

Mrs. Morris made public that the D. A. R. committee, created last July with approximately 70 members over the country, after exhaustive check of a variety of official and private documents and records had made the startling discovery that 26 more Frenchmen than history recorded had lost their lives in the siege, and that the work was still in progress. She declared also that the committee had turned its attention to checking the list of 20 slain or fatally wounded Americans in the battle. She said that the names of all these would be placed on the tablets.

In connection with the Yorktown observance, the D. A. R. also through its various chapters is holding meetings to honor its members who are descendants of the men who fought in the siege.

Mrs. Morris conceived the idea of a national military park at Yorktown which led to a resolution introduced in Congress in 1921 to embody the plan. It was framed by Walter Newton, then a representative from Mrs. Morris' home State of Minnesota and now a secretary to President Hoover, and was introduced by Frank B. Kellogg, then a senator from Minnesota.

Mal Daugherty Jury Complete in Fraud Case

Washington Courthouse, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A jury to try Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State Bank, and brother of Harry Daugherty, former United States Attorney General, was completed today with selection of a thirteenth juror to serve as an alternate in the event one of the regular panel becomes ill during the trial. Daugherty is charged with mishandling funds of the bank.

The jury was ordered sequestered for the duration of the trial and kept under surveillance of a bailiff. Court was adjourned until tomorrow when the first witness will be called.

Connecticut Couple Lose Lives in Flames

Danbury, Conn., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gilbert were burned to death today in their home in the southwestern section of this city.

The bodies of the couple, both of whom were about 70 years old, were found about 10 feet from the front entrance after firemen had removed a mass of burned household furniture which had fallen upon them from the second floor. The charred remains of a dog were found near the body of the woman. The origin of the fire was not known.

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity.

"May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at Peoples Drug Stores or any drugstore in America. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.—Adv.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION.

Unless it should become known that President Hoover is willing to have the naval construction bill postponed until the next session of Congress there is no reason to suppose that the bill will fail. A disposition has been shown in some quarters to delay the bill, but since the administration has recommended this legislation and is bound to keep the national defenses in decent proportion to national security, the bill would pass under normal conditions in Congress. It is true that the time is short and the calendars congested, but this is not an abnormal state of affairs in the closing days of a short session. Congress still has sufficient time in which to safeguard vital national interests.

The naval construction bill is a necessary consequence of the London Treaty. Failure to increase the Navy to a moderate degree, approaching equality with Great Britain by 1936, would be a gross betrayal of the national interest. The treaty was made with this American naval increase in view. It could not have been ratified except upon the understanding that the Navy would not be crippled. The deliberate postponement of the limited construction proposed would make it difficult if not impossible to bring the American and British fleets toward parity by 1936, and therefore such action would arouse violent opposition to any further naval conferences and would probably defeat any further naval limitation treaties.

The temper of the American people has been tested often enough to make it evident that they will not tolerate neglect of naval defense. They will not accept second place in naval power. Efforts to block the normal growth of the Navy toward equality with British sea power will stir up irresistible forces which will sweep away proposed limitations and compel Congress to build the greatest navy in the world. All the patient work that has been done to prevent naval rivalry will go for naught if the United States is deprived of its rightful status under the London Treaty.

Pleas of economy in support of enfeeblement of the Navy are false. There is no economy in inviting a struggle for naval supremacy. Once that point is reached, money will be no object to the American people. But the construction bill is one of the administration measures calculated to relieve unemployment. Ninety per cent of naval construction goes to labor. Nearly every industry and every State would feel the benefit of naval building operations. The money proposed to be expended would serve the triple purpose of assisting men to make a living, averting naval rivalry, and safeguarding the national defense.

A small amount of statesmanlike thought devoted to this subject should be sufficient to convince Congress that it would be most unwise to postpone naval construction.

LORD BESSBOROUGH.

The appointment of the Earl of Bessborough to be governor general is a significant event for Canada. Heretofore the governor general of the Dominion has been a personal representative of the king. Lord Bessborough was in reality chosen by Premier Bennett and his appointment by King George is merely a formality. This is the first time Canada has had a free hand in choosing its own representative of the crown.

At the imperial conference in London last autumn it was agreed that the dominions should have a controlling voice in choosing governor generals. This removes them another step farther away from the overlordship of Great Britain.

Lord Bessborough's selection is also significant in that it suggests the primary interests of the Canadian administration. He is one of England's foremost business men. In politics he is a Conservative, and will probably be in complete agreement with Premier Bennett's program for economic rehabilitation. Mr. Bennett has laid down as his guiding principle the development of Canada's resources and industries. He places the economic welfare of Canada first in all circumstances and insists that schemes for cooperation with the mother country be given secondary consideration.

Since the new governor general is a practical man of affairs and the choice of the Canadian government, he will probably cooperate fully in the work of developing Canada in harmony with the link that binds it to the British crown.

SHUT OUT SLAVE-MADE GOODS.

The plan of the Soviet government to force women into industry is another manifestation of the dictatorship's intention to sabotage the world's economic system. Moscow is determined to expand industrial production for the purpose of flooding the world with cheap products, to the end that foreign industry may be swamped while the Soviet draws in gold. It will sell at any price. The "cost of production" means nothing, when both land and labor are commandeered. If Russian labor can be kept under the lash the Soviet can flood the world with goods.

The Soviet is preparing to mobilize women as it has already mobilized men in industry. Albin Johnson's dispatch to the New York World exposes the slavery system that the Soviet has evolved. Not only does the Soviet fix wages arbitrarily, making payment in degraded money, but it denies the right of the individual to choose his employment or quit his job. The conscript must work in the job to which the government assigns him or be exiled to a labor camp or be executed. This system now is to be extended to women. They will work wherever the government finds they are needed, or they will be condemned to a labor camp or be executed for "treason to the five-year plan."

The Soviet mobilization of women lends force to hearings on the bills to place an embargo upon importation into the United States of products of Soviet Russia. These bills were introduced by Representative Williamson and Senator Oddie. In a magazine discussion of his bill Representative Williamson recently said:

> Practically all Soviet export commodities are produced by enforced labor at negligible cost. Hundreds of thousands of political prisoners and other so-called convicts toil like slaves without pay, in mines and forests and fields and, no doubt, in factories. Thousands, running into millions, of other Soviet workers are employed at a pittance which American labor, rightly, would consider an insult. Goods go over Russian rails at virtually no cost and are transported overseas largely in Soviet bottoms at a minimum of expense.

Now that women, as a group, are to be made victims of the Soviet's industrial slave system there is double reason for early action upon the embargo bills. Free America must be protected against the competition of slave labor.

ALIENS SMUGGLED IN AS SEAMEN.

The President has requested Congress to appropriate $500,000 to be used in finding, arresting and deporting aliens now in this country in violation of law. This would enable the Department of Labor to find and deport at least some of the undesirable aliens who have come here unlawfully and are remaining in violation of law.

The side door through which these undesirable aliens have been coming and are continuing to come has stood wide open since the close of the World War. It is open yet. Thousands of aliens pass themselves off as seamen and upon arrival at an American port they desert their ship.

A bill to deport inadmissible alien seamen passed the Senate unanimously February 2, 1927, but failed in the House committee. It was reintroduced in the next Congress and recommended unanimously from the committee, but its passage was prevented by Senator Bingham. It passed the Senate unanimously in April last year, and has been held up on a motion for reconsideration. If this bill had been passed in 1927 there would have been fewer aliens to deport. If it is not passed now, after nearly 500,000 aliens have smuggled themselves in, it will be a waste of money to seek out and deport aliens, as an open door will have been left open through which other aliens, falsely purporting to be seamen, can enter the country unlawfully.

SUGAR-COATING RADIO TALK.

The Department of Agriculture has set out to ascertain how much "sugar coating" the public desires with its radio broadcasting. Since 1926 the department has been using the air regularly to transmit to farmers the latest agricultural news. The programs always have been of the monologue type. During February and March, however, experiments will be made with nine different types of program presentation. The test of the acceptability of these various methods will be the reaction of the invisible audience as expressed in letters to the department.

Something is very much the matter with radio broadcasting. The advertiser injects matter extraneous to the program to an objectionable degree. The most interesting programs are continually interrupted with suggestions that this product or another be purchased. Thousands who once were radio enthusiasts have ceased to use their sets rather than be annoyed by sales talks.

Harold A. Lafount, member of the Federal Radio Commission, makes the suggestion that a limitation be imposed upon the kind and amount of advertising material broadcast by radio stations. Broadcasting stations, he says, are licensed to serve the public and not for the furthering of private or selfish interests of individuals. "Since advertising furnishes the economic support for the service a station renders and makes it possible," he adds, "it must necessarily be an exception to the rule, but the amount and character of the advertising must be rigidly confined within limits consistent with the public service expected of the station."

The Department of Agriculture experiment may find that certain kinds of "sugar coating" are desired by the public, but probably it will not. Advertisers are learning that "sugar coating" does not overcome public repugnance to excessive "sales talk."

LAME DUCK SONGS.

States whose representation in Congress will be reduced as a result of the 1930 census and the new reapportionment law are holding a commiseration session under the auspices of the House census committee. This is the last chance that they will have to lament, for after March 4 reapportionments will be made automatically following each census.

Four bills to alter the new line-up in the House are before the census committee. Attention seems to be centered upon the Thurston bill, which would add 40 representatives to the House. The bill does not provide for any system of apportionment, but specifically allocates 475 seats to the States on the basis of population. Some States would lose a representative in spite of the increase and others would gain more than they are entitled to under the new reapportionment act. Approximately the same relative standing of the States would be maintained, but the loss would not be felt so sharply in the "backward" States.

Chances for enactment of this or any other measure to upset the 1930 reapportionment are nil. Congressional leaders have agreed that there will be no legislation on the subject at this session. This means that the reallotment of seats based upon the present number of members will stand. Yet the House committee naively proceeds to conduct hearings on the matter when the end of the session is only three weeks away.

To the public this is a classical example of congressional waste of time and energy, when the House has no energy or time to spare. But who could deny a lame duck an opportunity to make a last stand against the abolition of the job he holds? Congress loves to hear swan songs. It may be assumed that the committee will give every agricultural representative a chance to bewail the passing of power from the good old farm to the iniquitous city. Then the matter can be forgotten and the Constitution obeyed.

IS THE BATTLESHIP OBSOLETE?

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

Those who answer this question in the affirmative usually advance two lines of reasoning. First, we hear them say that the battleship did nothing in the World War. They base this statement upon the fact that battleships and their sisters, the battle cruisers, did not often fight battles. Actually these two types of fighting craft, now classed under the one head of "capital ships," were in action much more frequently than is generally known. To mention some instances we find that two British battle cruisers destroyed Von Spee's squadron at the Falkland Islands; that Beatty's battle cruiser squadron sank several German cruisers in Helgoland Bight and defeated the German battle cruisers in the Dogger Bank Battle, and that British and French battleships participated in long months of fighting at the Dardanelles. The German battle cruiser Goeben made repeated raids against the Russian Black Sea coast and the British forces blockading the Dardanelles; Hipper's battle cruiser squadron frequently attacked the English coast, and a squadron of German battleships cooperated most effectively in the capture of the strongly fortified islands at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga.

It is true, nevertheless, that only on one occasion did the massed battle forces of the British and German navies come to grips on the battlefield. The result of that encounter was indecisive. Now there is a very good reason why there were so few encounters between the battleships and why these were never fought out to a decision. And this, in simple fact, is: The fate of a great empire or nation may be decided in a one-hour battleship fight. There can be no comparison between land and sea fighting in this respect. If the British navy had received a defeat comparable in any way with the blow Ludendorff gave their army in March, 1918, the war would have ended then and there. When the battleships are sunk there is no way to come back.

I liken the battleships of a country to its gold reserve in the treasury. They form an actual and potential support for every form of naval warfare, just as the gold reserve supports the finances of a nation. When they are risked in battle the very life of the nation is risked. It would have been no more risky for Admiral Scheer to have fought the British navy to a finish at Jutland than for the kaiser to have collected all the gold in Germany and have challenged King George to a stud-poker game with a $100,000,000 limit. In all the world there have been few gamblers who could compare with Napoleon Bonaparte and he testified to the resolution it required to initiate a decisive battle. "People form," he said, "a very incorrect idea of the strength necessary to wage, with full knowledge of its consequences, one of those great battles on which depend the fate of an army and a country and the possession of a throne." In the World War the consequences of a successful sea fight were so tremendous that no one on either side would fight it or order it to be fought. Their failure to fight—the correctness of which we can not argue here—was thus conclusive proof of the tremendous importance which they attached to the battleship as an instrument of sea power.

A second line of attack upon the battleship is that aircraft have rendered it obsolete. This is based upon an old conception of warfare: that battleships must operate close to hostile bases. Long before the advent of aircraft it became evident that battleships could never again conduct a close blockade of an enemy base, as Sampson did at Santiago. In fact, had Cervera known how to use his two destroyers for night attacks the close blockade would have been doomed way back in 1898. In the Russo-Japanese war six years later the mine came into effective use. The loss of two fine battleships by this new weapon convinced Admiral Togo that he could no longer closely approach the Russian base at Port Arthur. The final lesson was taught by Von Hersing in the U-21 off the Dardanelles. With a single submarine he sank two British battleships and drove the rest from the Turkish coast. In the North Sea these weapons—destroyer, submarine and mine—presented a menace which kept the British battleships a hundred miles or more off the German coasts.

The airplane, based ashore, merely reinforces the destroyer, the mine and the submarine in keeping the battleship a little farther away from the enemy's base. This in no way prevents the battleship from exercising its primary functions. In fact, there has always been a school, founded by Lord Nelson, which favors holding one's battleships a distance off the enemy's base to lure him to sea, so that he can be beaten and the campaign ended by a single blow. So, if this method be followed, the battleship can be attacked only by planes flown from ships. But ships equipped to fly off airplanes are much more vulnerable to air attack than the battleships themselves. Thus they find themselves the objectives of the first air attacks. By the time this battle between the rival air forces is decided, the number of planes available for attacking battleships will be much reduced and there will be few undamaged carriers from which they can launch such attacks. Incidentally, the modernization of our battleships has greatly increased their ability to resist air attack—as well as to reduce the effect of torpedoes and mines exploding against their underwater bodies. Thus the battleship can operate with full effect outside the range of shore-based hostile planes and is not seriously threatened by the direct attack of planes flown from ships. We say this without in any way minimizing the great value of airplanes—shore and ship based.

There are very positive indications that other nations still consider the battleship the very backbone of their fleets. Only a few years ago the British, after most carefully considering the lessons of the war, built the Rodney and Nelson. They have modernized, with possibly one exception, all the other capital ships permitted them by the London Treaty. The Japanese are rapidly modernizing their capital ships. Germany was restricted to ships of 10,000 tons by the Versailles Treaty. But even on this small tonnage she is building her famous "pocket battleship" with 11-inch guns. Despite cheap labor the cost of this ship per ton far exceeds that of any other large war vessel ever built. Three more of these battleships will be built. The French are about to build battleships of 23,000 tons. None of these countries have any money to waste. They certainly would not spend so much on battleships if they considered them obsolete.

When we proposed during the London Conference to build one battleship no foreign diplomats were heard whispering: "Excellent! Let those out-of-date Yankees waste their money. We hope they build it." No, friends, the reverberations of that proposal among the world capitals showed that there were still a few people who did not think the battleship was obsolete.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

SHAM.

They looked upon him as a granite rock,
Mighty, forbidding, silent, stern and grim;
Solid, as though he had no passing whim;
Unchanged he seemed to come through every shock,
Gales blew about him, but he seemed to mock
Their fitful rages. In the twilight dim
Watching the sunset at the western rim
He stood as if no beauty could unlock
The rugged breast which held the heart of him.

Yet sometimes when his friends could never know
And those he would not tell could never see,
In tenderness and pity he would go
To share another's hour of misery.
Men thought him cold, but many a kindness proved
The great rock held a soul and could be moved!

No Man Is Free if Another Man Calls the Tune He Plays.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you are an ordinary driver, you are unable to choose your pace unless you have the road to yourself.

If the street or highway ahead of you is empty of traffic, you are free to consult your own preference and drive fast or slowly as your mood and your errand suggest.

But the moment you see the rear end of another car, all capacity for independent action is taken from you. You increase your speed and sound your horn for gangway. As grimly as though your life depended on it, you overhaul and pass the other car. And then, with a clear road ahead, you slow down to the cruising speed you normally prefer.

The fact that you slow down is proof that you didn't pass the other car because you were in a hurry. You passed him because he was a competitor—because he dared to be ahead of you—because you couldn't be happy at any speed so long as you were behind the other fellow.

That is typical Americanism.

That is the great game of keeping up with the Joneses.

The cost of living isn't high enough to worry any man who has a job. It is the cost of keeping up with the Joneses that makes us nervous wrecks.

Our houses are filled with expensive play pretties and luxuries that we did not need and did not greatly desire until we saw their like in the homes of our neighbors.

We burdened ourselves with debt, saturated the market and thus prolonged a business depression in order to keep pace with the Jones tribe.

Because there is no fixed caste system in this land of opportunity, we are a nation of climbers. Every man is our competitor and we do not labor to attain a fixed standard but only to overhaul the man who happens to be in the lead.

We must, at any cost or sacrifice, have as much or seem to have as much as the biggest show-off in our vicinity.

Which means that we are not rational creatures, choosing our way of life to please ourselves, but helpless and unthinking victims of the man who sets the pace. Like sheep in a pasture, we jump the fence because he did. We are hypnotized by an example.

It isn't a thing to be proud of.

An intelligent man is one who has a reasonable reason for everything that he does.

Would you be content with what you have if nobody had more?

Then your struggle to get more proves you are not a free man, proudly choosing his own way of life, but a slave tied to another man's cart.

The follower always wears chains.

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Nye Can Hear Tongues Wagging.

Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Gerald P. Nye wails that publication in the Congressional Record of the Nye committee's $96,000 expense account is unfair and unclubby, not to say unheard of; that it has never been the custom to take such liberties with the expense accounts of other junketing senators. Senator Nye conveniently overlooks the fact that the committee itself, when it got its additional appropriation of $50,000, was granted the money only on the condition that it submit such an itemnized account.

Mr. Nye frankly fears the effect of the disclosures upon his own chances of renomination and reelection next year. He senses the reactions of sturdy North Dakotans to the news that their man-of-the-people senator and his committee colleagues have been traveling around the country in drawing room Pullmans, one senator to the drawing room, instead of occupying plebeian berths; paying dinner checks for amounts that would keep whole North Dakota families in food for a week. He says himself:

"I can hear tongues wagging and I can see lips moving in whispers, pointing out some little item in this account showing how lavishly Nye lives when he is out on Government expense."

And Bitter.

Florida Times-Union.

Government by commission, which has been replacing government by the people in this country, is producing sad fruits.

Building Up the Navy.

New York World.

The administration's Navy bill is intended to begin the construction of new cruisers, destroyers and submarines which will bring our tonnage in these categories up to the limitations set by the London naval treaty. It can be argued that unless we have built up to our allotted strength by 1936, when the present limitations expire and the question of tonnage must be faced afresh, we shall enter the next naval conference with a fleet which is short of treaty strength, and therefore that we shall find ourselves with no bargaining power in the setting of new limitations.

This is a persuasive argument, supported by the experience of the American delegates in the conference at London. For the moment, however, it is less persuasive argument for Republican leaders in the House than the argument against risking any action which might necessitate a special session.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Veteran Says Life Insurance Fund Can Provide Loans on Certificates —Interest Should Be Reduced.

To the Editor of The Washington Post—Sir: In connection with the recent proposal to increase the loan value of adjusted compensation certificates, it has been stated that the cost to the Government will be about $500,000,000, when, as a matter of fact, no additional financial burden or cost will be incurred by the Government. Up to date the Government has not loaned a single dollar to any veteran on the security of his certificate, all such loans, amounting to several hundred million dollars, having been made from the reserve funds belonging to United States Government Life Insurance policy holders. Such loans are now available here at 5½ per cent interest, and if made through the New York office the rate is approximately 4 per cent. Yet, when a policy holder goes to the bureau to borrow some of his own money, secured by his life insurance, he is, and always has been, charged 6 per cent, the maximum rate established by law in 1919. No doubt, the additional loans to be provided by the new proposed act will be financed, so far as the funds are available, from the life insurance fund at 4 per cent, and the rate automatically reduced to 4 per cent on the present loans secured by the certificates.

I am not complaining about the loans made from these funds in the past, or to be made in the future, but, I think, that it is a rank injustice that they should discriminate against the policy holders by continuing to charge them 6 per cent for the use of their own money. Congress should provide that loans on life insurance policies should be made at the same rate of interest as on the certificates, as the funds have been created by the policyholders, and, under law, they have first chance for loans.

Considering the available reserve funds in the United States Life Insurance Department, and the fund of several hundred million dollars held in the Treasury for the final redemption, it is questionable whether it will be necessary for the Government to issue any new bonds or certificates to raise money to make loans on the certificates, and if they do, such funds can no doubt be secured for less than 4 per cent, thereby resulting in an actual profit to the Government, as compared to the present and past status of the certificate question.

It accordingly appears that the press should discontinue referring to the $500,000,000 cost to the Government. The most it can amount to is that it may, or may not, be necessary for the Government to invest that sum in gilt edge, interest-bearing loans to veterans. If the interest on such loans is not paid by the veterans, they will still have some money due them in 1945, as the contemplated loans, plus compound interest computed in 1945, will fall short of exhausting the face of the certificates. Valued Reader Commends The Post for Exposure of Wrong and Injustice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one reader of The Post, peculiarly sensitive and susceptible, as I am told by my husband, to every form of injustice and daily conscious of all the many burdens pressed down on the large majority who must bear the burdens of civilization, I am moved to write to thank The Post for the several recent campaigns directed against some of our local injustices and wrongs, such as the exposure of conditions at one time existing in Gallinger Hospital, the small loan usury practices, and the operation openly of dishonest employment agencies. It is a good work and I for one hope you will keep at it. As one of the justices of the Supreme Court remarked recently when the Minneapolis Saturday Press case was being heard, if the discovery and disclosure of wrongs is not one of the things for which the press chiefly exists, then for what does it exist?

Scotchman Questions Irishman's Knowledge of Beer Drinking—How About It, Rep. Schafer, of Milwaukee?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Without even a very slight wish to criticize the English used by The Post's talented writers, but simply to gain information, I ask if Mr. Daly's use of the word "quaff" in Monday morning's account of Mr. Newman's lecture, was quite correct? As I remember, dimly, for I was a small child when saloons flourished, and from hearing my elders speaking today of the era, the proper word to describe the consumption of beer was "guzzle," not "quaff;" and also, was not the stuff taken from a receptacle called a "growler," not from a "beaker," as Mr. Daly has it? I am presenting this purely as a matter of historical moment, not in any captious spirit, for it is important that the younger generation now coming to the fore should be correctly informed on important matters.

Washington Was Born February 11 (Old Style), Corresponding to February 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of Sunday last, Washington's birthday, as usual, is placed on February 22.

But my recollection is clear that, when investigation was made, in an exhaustive manner, no member of the large family connection was found that could speak positively as to the correct day, and that February 22 was chosen as an artificial and arbitrary substitute for the day.

Please let's have this question settled by our calendarists. Surely The Post can call out some one who can enlighten us on this point, which is interesting, only as a matter of fact.

NEWS FROM NEARBY STATES

3 HELD AS KILLERS OF MRS. ORNDORFF

Constable and Two Others Accused as Grand Jury Frees Relatives.

GIVE BOND FOR HEARING

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 10.—Constable George Bageant, of Frederick County, was arrested today on a warrant charging him with murdering Mrs. Rebecca Orndorff, wife of H. Blanton Orndorff, last November 28, and George W. Pingley and Chester Hockman were arrested charged with feloniously assaulting Orndorff.

Bageant is charged by Orndorff in the warrant with willfully and deliberately shooting and killing Mrs. Orndorff with a double-barrel shotgun loaded with buck shot. The men were released on bond to appear for a hearing Saturday.

Issuance of the warrants followed failure of the grand jury to indict Orndorff and three of his sons for the murder of the wife and mother, for which they were arrested and held in jail by county authorities.

Mrs. Orndorff was shot during a desperate encounter at her home when Bageant, Pingley and Hockman went there to get possession of a dog, held by court order to belong to Hockman.

Household furniture, kitchen utensils, milk crocks and sticks of firewood were hurled during the fight, in which nearly all participants were injured.

Mrs. Orndorff was thought by some to have been shot while Bageant and her son were struggling for possession of the gun, said to have belonged to Hockman.

Two Youths Held As Store Robbers

Martinsburg Police Assert Pair Confessed Theft; Loot Is Found.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 10.—Raymond Raigner, 19, and Leon Webber, 17, were in jail here today charged with grand larceny, to which police said they had confessed. Their arrest followed discovery at the Webber home of a quantity of caps, trousers, cartons of cigarettes and other goods which were identified as having been stolen from a commissary at Blairton, a limestone quarry settlement near here, ten days ago.

Police said the youths confessed to having walked the 3 miles to the store, to have broken the window with a hammer, and brought the stolen goods back here.

Also found in the loot were 25 pairs of shoes, identified as stolen from the stock in a store here which was damaged by fire two months ago.

Marriage Bee Stings Trio Of Brothers on Same Day

Kennett Square, Pa., Allabands Hie Over to Baltimore and Surprise Each Other in the Act of Getting Licenses, Then Atlantic City.

Baltimore, Feb. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Marriage License Clerk Shallcross had the funniest experience of his career at the job yesterday. Just as one young man had finished writing "William Allaband, 28, of Kennett Square, Pa., and Myrtle N. Eastburn, 16, of Unionville, Pa.," another couple entered.

"Why, hello, Earl, what are you doing here?" cried the first bridegroom-to-be.

"Same as you, I guess," replied the second young man as he wrote "Earl F. Allaband, 21, of Kennett Square, Pa., and Eva M. Crossan, 18, of Unionville, Pa."

The girls giggled and William looked surprised, when another couple walked into the room.

"Lo, boys," said the third young man, "didn't expect to find you here. Is this where we get a marriage license?"

While the two men gasped and Clerk Shallcross looked dazed, the third young man wrote "Harvey Allaband, 24, of Kennett Square, Pa., and Margaret E. Gallagher, 19, of Kennett Square." Then the three brothers shook hands excitedly, while the girls embraced.

Maybe it was a coincidence; anyway, the license clerk directed the three couples to the parsonage of the Chestertown Methodist Episcopal Church, where they were married by the Rev. J. Harry Wright. All started for Atlantic City for honeymoons.

Thomas Woollen Dies at Age of 69

Cashier of Bank 20 Years; Institution's Failure Cause of Health Breakdown.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 10.—Thomas W. Woollen, 69, for twenty years cashier of the Crozet Bank, which closed its doors some two months ago, died today at University Hospital. While his health had not been good for years, the collapse became complete when the bank failed, and he declined rapidly.

A native of Jefferson County, Ind., Mr. Woollen came to Albemarle 22 years ago and purchased a farm near Ivy. His orchard was regarded as one of the best in the county. He took an active interest in fruit growing and for many years had been treasurer of the Virginia Horticultural Society.

Mr. Woollen married Miss Nellie Harvey, of Indiana, who survives. There are no children. He leaves a brother and two sisters. Funeral rites will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Crozet Baptist Church.

Boy, 14, Awakens Sleepers Who Flee From Fire in Night Clothes.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 10.—H. E. Dale, wife, son, John, 14, and daughter, June, 5, fled from their burning home on the Boonsboro road near Lynchburg this morning at 1 o'clock and watched the two-story dwelling burn with practically all its contents.

John was aroused by noise of the fire and awakened his parents. All started out together in their sleeping attire, but the youth was overcome by smoke and had to be carried out.

Two fire companies from Lynchburg responded, but lacked water. The loss was probably more than $2,000.

Girl Dies of Snake Bite Suffered 5 Months Ago

Decatur, Ala., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Lillian Lee Terry, 17, died today of a snake bite which she and her family had forgotten. Five months ago she was bitten by a copperhead. She was given medical treatment and apparently recovered after an illness of four days.

Recently, however, her limbs became paralyzed and she was taken to a hospital. Doctors traced the paralysis to the snake's poison. They could find nothing to check its spread and death came gradually.

BARTLETT NOW FEARS HE WAS USED IN LEASE

days without receiving the postal case, Blaine said.

Bartlett told the committee of a conference between Fesler and New at which he said Fesler "did most of the talking and did it in a most positive manner, focusing blame for the contract on Mr. New, whom he didn't seem to like."

It was after that conference, Bartlett said that New said Fesler must be displaced.

As he prepared to leave the stand, Bartlett said:

"I have not desired to injure any other person, not even those who have misrepresented me in secret places. But I can not permit my reputation, built up by a lifetime of rectitude, to pass down to my descendants tarnished with the deeds of others because I either fear or dislike to tell the truth."

Trotter Denies Signing.

Trotter denied he had signed Bartlett's name to the St. Paul lease, but said he thought a clerk in the department had.

"There was nothing irregular about it," he said, explaining that the signatures to the formal lease were merely a matter of form.

The contract really was made when he accepted the new lease proposal at New's direction, Trotter said. He testified James W. Good, later Secretary of War, had said Comptroller General McCarl approved the contract. McCarl since has denied this.

Bartlett, who had testified Trotter signed his name, returned to the stand and said Trotter's statement was substantially in accordance with his own memory in that New had ordered the lease accepted.

STATE RIGHTS FACE FIGHT OVER POWER

Virginia Conservation Head Thinks Hearing Here on Feb. 16 Momentous.

MAY RESORT TO COURTS

Richmond, Va., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—William E. Carson, chairman of the State Conservation and Development Commission, today described as "the greatest fight since the Civil War to save the rights of the States," the effort being made by Virginia and other States to establish the right of State authorities to authorize erection of hydroelectric power plants on nonnavigable streams.

Speaking before the Richmond Interclub Council, Mr. Carson told of the hearing set for Monday morning before the Federal Power Commission at Washington involving this question. The hearing, he pointed out, concerns only the application of the Appalachian Electric Power Co. for authority to build a $18,000,000 power development on New River at Radford, Va., but Mr. Carson said that if Virginia is granted the right to permit this construction, it will probably mean expenditure of $100,000,000 for developments in the State in the next ten years.

Several other States, he said, have come into the case as intervenors on behalf of Virginia.

Mr. Carson referred to the granting by the State Corporation Commission yesterday of authorization to the Page Power Co. to erect a $527,000 hydroelectric plant on the Shenandoah River near Overall, Page County. This, he said, is the first case of the kind in which the commission has taken jurisdiction, and if the Federal commission holds, at the approaching hearing, that Virginia is without the right to grant such permit, there will be a conflict which may have to be settled in the Federal courts.

YOUR NAME — IT MEAN? WHAT DOES

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

In a previous article reference was made to the family name "Wolf," especially as found in England. This name was introduced into Ireland at the time of the Anglo-Norman invasion. It has since spread throughout that country where it is most frequently found with the spellings, "Woulfe" and "Wolfe." The Woulfes of Limerick have especially distinguished themselves. They took an active part in the affairs of that city from the fourteenth to the middle of the seventeenth century. As one might suppose, the Wolfs of English and American directories are by no means all of early English origin. A great many of them have come from various countries on the European continent, especially from Germany. The common German spellings of this name are "Wulf," "Wolff" and "Wolf." The diminutive forms "Wolfel," "Woelfel" and "Woelfle" are also frequently found. The common diminutive form in Switzerland is "Woelfli." A certain Ortlof der Wolf is mentioned in a German document of the year 1300. Latinized forms of this name are of frequent occurrence in early records. A list of German names dated 1390 includes the name of Petrus Lupus (Peter Wolf). The Flemish name "Dewolf" (also spelled "De Wolf") is popularly supposed to have come under French influence. Such is not the case, however. The first element of this name is the Flemish word for "the" and has nothing to do with the French preposition meaning "of" or "from."

The family name "Gelse" is generally a modern shortened form of "Giso." "Giso" (also spelled "Kiso") was an old Germanic personal name meaning "the spear."

Jane Interprets the Mode

Unusual elegance in a white georgette evening gown with finely pleated skirt, trimmed in an odd manner with material solidly beaded in pearls. (A Dah-ray design.)

Paris, Feb. 10.

SOME of us are happy to hear about the change in hat frontage, as it were. Not that others of us don't like to present a calm, unruffled and, we always hope, unwrinkled brow to the world. But since all women obviously did not look their best in a hat that ended at the hair line, we do feel that there will be more attractive women flitting hither and yon now that hats are turning sideways.

You may still show your forehead, of course, only now it must be the half of it instead of all of it. And you must show a lot of lovely hair * * * and see that it is lovely, what's more. Fully the half of your head of hair must you show, instead of the whole of your forehead, as of yesterday.

This hat mode might well be the reason for the renewed interest in wigs that Miladi is showing, or it is perhaps another whim of hers, or a desire to dazzle in a different color of hair at different hours. A famous wig maker on the Rue Royale of Paris told me that many women were buying three and four wigs for evening and formal afternoon wear. Nothing the matter with their own hair at all, my dears—just a fancy.

So as soon as those pennies roll in and this doctor and nurse and what roll out—you can't buy wigs and have pneumonia both at "once," now can you? I'll hie me down to the wig makers and tell you more about styles in wigs—meanwhile know that the smartest hats are half off—the hair.

I have designed for you today an evening gown which simply oozes sophistication and elegance in every line. It's only to be worn when you feel or want to look the haughty queen. It's principally of white georgette and pearls and includes every last word in evening chic * * * but in its own particular way. The corsage is softly draped at the natural waistline and the hips are closely modified half way to the knees. The skirt "proper" begins there and is full, long and accordeon pleated. The most distinctive part of the gown is the pearl beaded section, which begins at the top as a berth (or forms cap-sleeves, if you like that better), then descends the front to a little above the knees, where it flares stiffly away from the gown, forming a very smart and unusual flounce effect—and all in one piece, too.

Having a valentine party? Then you simply must send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department, Washington Post, for our illustrated leaflet for the queen of hearts valentine party with all table decorations, favors, place cards and everything all figured out for you to make. And if you aren't going to give a party, maybe you're going to one and should send for the leaflet anyway, because it tells you how to make a queen of hearts costume very cleverly and inexpensively.

Fashion French—Tissage (tee-sahzh)—weaving. Tissu (tee-sew)—fabric. Toile (twahl)—linen, crinoline. Toilette (twah-lett)—apparel. Tomate (Toe-maht)—to-mato red.

You're missing considerable if you're not reading Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Washington Post every Sunday.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MORE ABOUT PERENNIALS.

AS A general thing, hardy herbaceous plants are easily grown. The most important detail in raising them is a thorough preparation of the soil. Never be content with simply digging a hole in the ground at some convenient place and planting a root. Remember that these plants will remain where you place them for years. So make a good start.

First, incorporate some well-rotted manure with the ground. Do not be sparing with it but use it freely. If it is well rotted it will not injure anything. In preparing your ground be sure to dig it deep and break it up thoroughly, mixing the manure well with the soil. If the ground is very hard better dig it over twice, the last time just before planting, to insure its being in good condition. Plant herbaceous stock (perennial plants) where it will get all possible sun and away from the roots of trees, for nothing so impoverishes flowerbeds as tree roots. A good location is with the shrubbery—unless the shrubs in your garden happen to be unusually strong-growing varieties, in which case be very careful to avoid them. Roots of small shrubbery will not interfere in any way.

Never crowd too many plants into a small space. Give each specimen plenty of room for individual development. If your herbaceous plants are overcrowded you will have clutter instead of beauty.

Before placing your order for these plants study the catalogs well, remember they do not all bloom at the same time. Select some of the early varieties, then choose a few for midsummer bloom and finally plant a generous number of fall bloomers, to prolong the color of your garden. With a careful selection of varieties you will have flowers from early spring until after the first light frost. A garden generously supplied with hardy perennials is a permanent and worth-while asset to any home. These plants which require so little care are suitable for city, suburban or for real country planting.

Work's Radio Bridge Game

In his final Radio Bridge broadcast of the season, heard through Station WRC at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Milton C. Work answered the final ten questions in his Handicap Test, by which participants may grade their Bridge skill if they so desire. The method of grading is: If all your answers are correct (including the ten questions previously answered) you belong in Class A; one, two or three mistakes put you in Class B; four, five or six mistakes in Class C; and more than six mistakes in Class D. Answers are the same at Auction and Contract.

Questions 11 and 12 are based on this hand: South—Spades, K, 10, 8, 3; Hearts, A, K, 8; Diamonds, A, K, 7; Clubs, K, J, 8. West—Spades, J, 9, 3; Hearts, J, 7, 3; Diamonds, 8, 2; Clubs, A, Q, 7, 4, 2. North—Spades, Q, 2; Hearts, 9, 6, 4; Diamonds, Q, J, 9, 6, 5; Clubs, 9, 6, 5. East—Spades, A, 7, 6, 4; Hearts, Q, 10, 5, 2; Diamonds, 10, 4, 3; Clubs 10, 3. South is Declarer, playing No Trump (one at Auction, three at Contract). To the first trick are played: West, the 4 of Clubs; North the 5; East the 10; South the Jack. To trick two South leads the Ace of Diamonds.

Questions: 11. What is the correct lead for South to trick three? 12. What is the lead to trick four?

King of Diamonds.

Answers: 11. To trick three South should lead the King of Diamonds, winning the trick. 12. To trick four South should lead the King of Spades. The reason for this seemingly peculiar play is that Declarer can be sure of two Heart tricks, five Diamond tricks and one Club trick—just one short of game. He can easily establish a Spade for the needed trick; but if East holds the Ace of Spades and wins the first Spade, he will doubtless lead a Club and West probably will be able to make four Club tricks and save game. The important thing for Declarer is to induce East to let one Spade win, and East is most likely to do that if he thinks Declarer has no more Diamonds in his own hand and is trying to make an entry in dummy with the Queen of Spades in order to run Dummy's long Diamonds. If West has the Ace of Spades, Declarer's game is perfectly safe.

Questions 13 and 14 all for this deal: South—Spades, A, Q, J; Hearts, A, J, 8, 2; Diamonds, K, J, 7, 4; Clubs, A, K. West—Spades, 9, 6, 3, 2; Hearts, 10, 3; Diamonds, 9, 6; Clubs, Q, J, 9, 4, 3. North—Spades, 7, 5; Hearts, K, 7, 6, 4; Diamonds, A, 5, 3, 2; Clubs, 8, 7, 2. East—Spades, K, 10, 8, 4; Hearts, Q, 9, 5; Diamonds, Q, 10, 8; Clubs, 10, 6, 5. With South playing No Trump (three in Contract), West, to trick one, would lead the Queen of Clubs.

Questions: 13. How many entries does the North hand contain? 14. How many tricks should Declarer make against the best defense?

Had Four Entries.

Answers: 13. The North hand contains four entries, two in Hearts and two in Diamonds. 14. Thirteen tricks. The correct play is for South to lead the 8 of Hearts to trick two. North winning with the King and returning the 4. South taking the Jack finesse and then leading the Ace. This leaves dummy's 7 of Hearts an entry, South having the Deuce. In Diamonds a similar play is made. South leads the 7; North takes with the Ace, and returns the Deuce; South takes with the Jack and leads the King; so North has the 5 of Diamonds as an entry, with South holding the 4. With these two entries, North can be put in the lead twice, and two Spade finesses by South produce thirteen tricks.

The two hands for Questions 15 and 16 were given as: South—Spades, A, Q, 10; Hearts, Q, J; Diamonds, A, Q, 10, 7, 6; Clubs, A, J, 7. North—Spades, 7, 4, 3; Hearts, 9, 5, 2; Diamonds, J, 9, 5; Clubs, K, Q, 10, 4. South, Declarer, is playing a No Trump. West opens with the 5 of Spades. East plays the Jack.

Questions: 15. What Spade should Declarer play from the South hand on trick one? 16. Which suit should be led to trick two?

Answers: 15. Ace of Spades. 16. A Club. It will be seen that Declarer is sure of two Spade tricks and four Club tricks. He can also make five Diamonds if the finesse wins, but can not make game without risking the Diamond finesse. If he should take the Jack of Spades played by East with the Queen, then put Dummy in with a Club and try the Diamond finesse, and it should lose to West, West would not continue the Spades because he could mark the Ace and 10 in the South hand. West would be sure in that case to lead Hearts, and the adversaries would take at least four Heart tricks and save game. If Declarer wins the Jack of Spades with the Ace, West will be apt to place the Queen of Spades in his partner's hand. Then, if the Diamond finesse loses, West may continue Spades, in which case the Declarer will make an easy game. If the Diamond King is in the East hand, the Declarer has nothing to fear. He can make game by winning one Spade, five Diamonds and four Clubs. The Spade subterfuge may not succeed, but it is very apt to do so.

Questions 17 and 18.

Questions 17 and 18 are based on these hands: South—Spades, A, Q, 10; Hearts, K, J, 4; Diamonds, J, 9, 7, 6; Clubs, A, K, J. North—Spades, 7, 5; Hearts, Q, 6, 5, 2; Diamonds, A, Q, 10, 8; Clubs, Q, 10, 9. South is Declarer, playing No Trump (three at Contract). West opens with the 4 of Spades; East plays the 9.

QUESTIONS: 17. Which Spade should South play on trick one? 18. Which suit should South lead to trick two?

ANSWERS: 17. The 10 of Spades. 18. A Heart. South can expect to take two Spade tricks, three Club tricks, two Heart tricks, and three or four Diamond tricks, depending upon the location of the adverse King. The danger for Declarer is that if he should win with the 10 of Spades and then lead a Diamond for the finesse and the finesse should lose, East would return a Spade; and while South could wait until the third round to win and then run his Diamonds and Clubs, making eight tricks, he would still have to win a Heart to go game. If West held the Ace of Hearts, he could take that trick and, supposing (as is probable) he held five Spades, would save the game. Declarer ensures the game for himself if, after winning the first trick with the 10 of Spades, he leads a Heart, preferably the King or Jack, to trick two. Should he win the Heart trick, he can try his Diamond finesse, because, even if it should lose, he will have his game assured with two Spades, one Heart, three Diamonds and three Clubs. If the Heart should be taken by the adverse Ace and a Spade led through South, the Ace can be held up until the third round and then Diamonds led. Supposing the Diamond finesse to lose, East will not have another Spade if West led from five. If West led from four, the adversaries make but two Spades, which can do no harm.

Final Questions Answered.

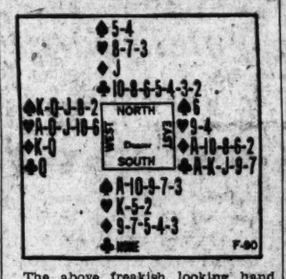
The final questions of the series concern these cards: South—Spades, A, J, 9, 4; Hearts, A, 8, 6; Diamonds, A, 9; Clubs, A, 10, 7, 3. North—Spades, K, Q, 7, 2; Hearts, J, 7; Diamonds, K, J, 10, 6, 5, 3; Clubs, 9. South is playing No Trump (three at Contract); West leads to the first trick the 6 of Clubs, North plays the 9, East the King.

Questions: 19. Which Club should South play on this trick? 20. When South obtains the lead which suit should he lead?

Answers: 19. The Ace. 20. South should then lead a Spade. The theory of the play is that after dummy has been put in with a Spade, trick two, dummy will lead any Diamond except the King and South will finesse if East does not play the Queen. This cinches the game for Declarer. If West wins with the Queen, West can make two Clubs, but South will then have that suit stopped, and North and South will take the remaining tricks. If the Diamond finesse wins, Declarer's game is assured.

WORK'S BRIDGE

AN AUCTION BRIDGE HAND.



The above freakish looking hand was held at a tournament of the American Whist League at White Sulphur Springs, some years ago. It was dealt in a game of Auction Bridge and produced some interesting bidding and play, there being much more of the former than is apt to be the case at Auction.

South (the dealer) passed, West bid one Spade, North passed, and East bid two Clubs. South passed again, and West bid two Hearts. That declaration being passed by North, East bid two No Trumps; but after South's third pass, West felt that opposite a No Trump it would be safer to play at Hearts—and more remunerative in view of the honor score. So he bid three Hearts, which ended the auction.

At Contract the bidding might have been: South and North always passing; West two Spades, East four Clubs, West four Hearts, East four No Trumps, West five Hearts. Whether East should then bid six is a matter each reader must determine for himself as the hand never was played at Contract.

North led the Jack of Diamonds and the Declarer, appreciating the importance of a trump lead from East, won that trick in the dummy hand with the Ace, although one of West's high Diamonds was sacrificed on it. East led the Nine of Hearts which took the trick when South played small and West played the Six. A second lead of Hearts and a second finesse followed, and then the Ace of Hearts dropped all the adverse Hearts and left the Declarer with the two unplayed.

Declarer's next play was the King of Diamonds; North refused, leaving only one good Diamond in dummy. Then came the Queen of Clubs which was overtaken by dummy's King with a chance of establishing the suit, but South refused; so East was then in a position to run two more Clubs and one Diamond, but no more. With that done and three Spade discards from the West hand (two being all that West really needed), East led a Spade and of course South's Ace won; but West made a small slam and scored quite a gain on the hand.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Quarreling Habit.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Do not discard this plea as unimportant for it is a very serious matter to me. I am married just one year and it looks as if it would be the first and last. The trouble is that we quarrel every single day over something. It starts with some wise remark from my husband or some complaint from me and before you could believe it we are just yelling at each other. He tells me to not be there when he gets back and I tell him I won't. But I am and we kiss and make up but the next day the same thing. While it lasts we hate each other and nothing is too nasty or mean for us to say. I can not believe the things I hear myself saying when these fits come.

If my parents knew, I do not know what they would think, for such things never took place in our home. My in-laws are not as bad as my husband and I, but they do quarrel occasionally. However, that is no excuse for me. My husband even throws things, not at me, of course, but on the floor just to break them and make me mad. Last night he smashed a glass pitcher with silver handle that his mother gave me for Christmas. I was so mad I could have done anything. So I called his mother and told her what kind of a son she had. This morning he did not eat breakfast and told me to be out of the house before he got back. It is nearly 9 o'clock and he has not come home for dinner so I think he is at his mother's, telling her everything he knows.

What is to become of us should we separate? He is so strong-headed he just makes me wild. I would gladly leave him and his old fits of yelling about nothing. Can I get a divorce when he orders me out?

BABE.

There is no fear of my discarding such a letter as unimportant for quarreling happens to be one of the things that desecrate life and destroy decency. A quarreling couple are two people tempting fate and daring love to survive their treachery. You and your husband will grow to hate each other just as sure as other yelling couples have. How can you so degrade each other? See yourself as you are—just a pair of raging animals, unrestrained and unashamed. If you will force yourself to see the picture as it really is you will find the strength and the dignity to ignore the first remark that threatens to cause trouble. If you will scrupulously refuse to be drawn into an argument for a day or two, your husband will be shamed into avoiding disagreeable comments that go unnoticed. Tell him in advance that, regardless of what he says you will not participate in any more brawls. When he sees that you mean it and that you remain silent, if not serene, regardless of provocation, he will desist because of the superiority such behavior on your part will display. He will feel inferior and no male can long endure that sensation.

Make no mistake about the seriousness of the situation. And do not speak of separation as if that would change you. No matter how many husbands you accumulate on your way through life, you will always be quarreling if you do not learn to be above such disgraceful performances.

Marriage is beautiful or horrible, depending as much upon the manners of the two involved as upon their morals. So watch your manners.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

There are no pronounced influences on this date. The day, should not be set aside for important family or personal occasions, as it is unpropitious. An uneasy feeling or suspicion and vague fear may overshadow you the later hours of the day.

Children born on this February 11 will have a quiet and an unimpulsive nature, but will be persistent, determined and not to be thwarted in their aims. They will be sociable and of a good disposition. They will make creditable records at school in most of their subjects, and will take a keen interest in sports. They will be more loyal than affectionate.

The planets were so placed on your birthday (February 11) as to produce in you a very strong personality. The ideal and practical sides of your nature are well blended, and you have a fairly all-around character. You have the vision, will and energy to originate and the steadiness and practical ability to execute. When you have formed a plan of campaign, you do not rest until you have carried it out, no matter at what expense of time or trouble. You can both plan and perform, preach and practice, direct others, and do the work yourself. Destiny has fitted you to come to the front; to occupy some position of responsibility and trust.

Your magnetic forces are very powerful. Your affections are very warm, and you make friends easily and are faithful to them. You particularly attract, and are attracted to those of the opposite sex. You should have a superabundance of vitality and good recuperative powers in time of sickness.

There is a tendency for you to be too positive, too self-willed and too dogmatic. From childhood on, you have failed to listen to others, and have insisted upon going "your sin gait." Your own judgment is good, as a rule, but there are times when it would benefit you to listen to those who speak from experience.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

RABBIT MAY BE BROILED.
(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Broiled chicken—why not broiled rabbit? Perhaps you have seen lately in your local market some of the domestic or hutch-raised rabbits that are being extensively produced from West to East. You have wondered whether the family would like them; the "gamy" flavor of wild rabbit was not especially popular.

Without hesitation you can experiment with some of these tender, sweet-fleshed domestic rabbits. The meat can best be compared to that of chicken, and it is cooked in all the ways chicken is cooked. Get a young rabbit to try, and broil it. Put it on the table without comment and some members of the family will suppose they are eating chicken. These hutch-raised rabbits eat rolled cereals, alfalfa hay and leafy vegetables. As a result the meat is delicious in flavor and tender in texture. They may be eaten at any time of year.

Wipe the rabbit with a clean damp cloth, sprinkle it with salt, pepper and flour. Place whole, back down, on a rack in a flat baking pan. Place generous pieces of butter in the hollow places. Cook in a moderately hot oven (375 to 400 degrees F.) for 40 to 50 minutes, or until tender. Turn the rabbit over, baste with pan drippings and place under the flame of the broiling oven to brown. Cut and serve the broiled rabbit on a hot platter, and pour over it the drippings mixed with one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley.

Safe, Secure
sanitary protection
—that's Kotex

YOU should make certain—when you buy sanitary pads—that you are getting the safest protection possible. Protect your health. Assure your comfort. Feel well groomed, at ease. Be sure you ask for Kotex.

Kotex is soft, gentle, easy. And it stays soft. It absorbs laterally—that means greater efficiency—a greater area of protection than other types of pad give you. It gives equal protection, worn on either side. Of course, Kotex is disposable, too. That's why millions of women first abandoned old-fashioned makeshifts.

Hospitals use both Kotex and the delicate, efficient absorbent of which it is made. That should certainly recommend it for your use.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXXIX.
Reconstruction.

When the war ended, Gen. Wood switched his mind promptly to the problems of peace. The camp was to be a training center, not only military but education. Within two months he had a university in full swing, with 27,000 students. Organizing his school, he had five objectives—military training, obviously; industrial and economic efficiency, stock raising and a dozen other aspects of agriculture; mechanical engineering, and work in the laboratories and shops. The stimulation of national consciousness by the study of American history, biography, literature, government. Social efficiency, the training of the soldier, soon to be a civilian again, to enjoy himself and to add to the enjoyment of others; with games of all sorts, boxing and wrestling; plays and pageants, and incidentally, as a hint to the wayward, lectures on physiology and hygiene. Community service, the training of men to be alert citizens in their own towns, with courses in civil government, community institutions, community health and sanitation.

In all this Wood was looking beyond the need of keeping the minds of the men of his command occupied and of stimulating their ambitions. He intended to dramatize to the public the educational possibilities in peace time of a military training camp. The fight for universal military training was yet to be fought and he was eager to show what it might mean in the enlightenment of the nation's youth.

Such action was needed at the moment.

"We have a lot of doddards toddling into the military situation now," he wrote Roosevelt. "The general staff, which is such only in name, is quoted in last night's paper as being opposed to universal service and training and recommending a standing army of 500,000 men. These are on a par with the group of microcephaloids who twice sent me, when I was chief of staff, a unanimous recommendation from the War College in favor of the bounty system as against universal service. * * * If regular officers have been guilty of such a recommendation they have betrayed the true military interests of the country and they are playing the enemy's game."

The collapse of the Germans found the administration as unprepared for peace as it had been unprepared for war. The cancellation of war contracts threw thousand out of work; the mustering out of the troops flooded the cities with further thousands whose normal habits of life had been shaken and changed.

Red Menace Feared.

The success of the Bolshevik revolution in Russia had made a profound impression in the ranks of American labor, especially among the foreign born. Everywhere radicals were saying that the hour of the world revolution had struck; everywhere conservatives were shaking their heads and talking of rope and lamp posts and 100 per cent Americanism. The Department of Justice became hysterical and emulated the Russian cheka in raiding and terrorizing agitators.

If ever the American people needed guidance and the steadying word, it was in the months that followed the signing of the armistice. But the President, who had taken two and a half years to come to a realization of the menace of the European war, appeared quite obtuse to the domestic perils of the sudden peace. Early in December, 1918, he departed for France as head of the American peace commission. For the critical six months that followed—except for a brief interval, indeed, for the next two years—the country was to be without leadership. No hand was at the helm to steady the ship in case of sudden crisis. In the wake of the greatest war in history, amid the reverberations of the greatest social upheaval, the country was adrift.

Congress, moreover, could offer the country no leadership. The Democrats had so long yielded servile obeisance to the President that they had lost all initiative; and the Republican leaders were practically all "negative" statesmen, prosecuting attorneys, interested in the main only in indicting the President for whatever he might do or leave undone in Paris. As the year 1919 dawned, there was one man in the United States capable of exercising creative leadership in a difficult time. But on January 6 Roosevelt died.

After Roosevelt's Death.

Wood, picking his way two days later down the snow-covered path from Roosevelt's grave, could scarcely have been unaware of the dramatic change which Roosevelt's death had brought to his own position in the national scene. The politicians, scanning the chaos into which Roosevelt's sudden death had plunged the Republican party, were fully aware of it. He was, they said, a "formidable candidate" for the nomination; the only one they saw on the horizon, with the exception of Warren G. Harding.

On February 9, before an audience of almost 20,000 people in the Convention Hall in Kansas City, Wood delivered an address in memory of Roosevelt. It proved an eloquent and moving tribute; and something besides; for inherent in the very praise of his dead friend and the things he had believed in and fought for was his own confession of faith. A gesture of defiance toward the administration such as Roosevelt himself might have made, was not lacking, and he struck daringly at the idea of any League of Nations which will impair the Nation's freedom of action.

Address Brought Ovation.

Whether a memorial meeting was an appropriate occasion for an attack on the chief policy of the President and whether an officer of the Army was an appropriate person to launch it, were questions of taste. But the warfare of Wood and the administration had at no time, on either side, revealed much response to inhibitions of delicacy.

Wood's address brought him an ovation and stirred the waters even in Washington. Politicians pointed out that "either unconsciously or with a master hand," Wood had stated his own creed and made a "bold and convincing bid for the Republican nomination."

The year 1919 was stormy and bewildering. Labor was in a ferment. A general strike in Seattle startled the country with its covert intimations of revolution. In the Nation's hunger for leadership, the city's flamboyant mayor became overnight a national hero.

The police of Boston struck. For several days, amid rioting and looting, the governor, whose friends had sought to secure for him the literary pulpit vacated by Theodore Roosevelt, appeared to waver unhappily. But when he finally did act, the sententious phrase that no man had the right "to strike against the public safety" almost compensated for his delay and, in Calvin Coolidge, a bewildered public, trying to get its bearings, had a new hero to set beside Mayor Ole Hanson.

Good Chance Given.

Wood had ample opportunity that autumn to set himself beside the Mayor of Seattle and the Governor of Massachusetts as a savior of society, and let it pass. In the coal mines in West Virginia, armed miners sought to invade certain mining districts in order to unionize them by force. Wood blocked that without violence, by bringing his troops on the scene a little in advance of the miners. In Omaha, a race riot broke out, and for nine hours the city was in the hands of a howling mob. A Negro was lynched, the mayor of the city was all but hanged, the police were helpless, and the Governor of Nebraska called lustily for troops. Wood received the call at Bismarck, N. Dak., and broke all records for a caboose in making his way to the center of disturbance. "We were in the air as about as much as we were in our seats." The troops he had ordered by telephone were already in Omaha when he arrived, supported by 200 former service men. Wood issued a proclamation which was conspicuous for its matter-of-fact tone and the absence of those ringing phrases which he knew so well to fashion, and a list of instructions as prosaic as a shopping list. The excitement promptly subsided.

On October 5, Wood was back in Chicago. On the 6th, the Governor of Indiana sent a call for help. Thirty-five thousand steel workers, out on strike, were in the streets of Gary and the authorities feared mob violence. Wood had 1,000 or more men waiting at Fort Sheridan outside Chicago, and twelve minutes after he gave the order they were on the way to Gary.

Wood Goes to Gary.

There was much scurrying among Wood's political supporters when it appeared that he was planning himself to take charge of the situation. To quell a mob was one thing, to mix himself up with a strike was another. There was dynamite in it. As a candidate for President he had no right to risk it. He must send some subordinate. "If you go to Gary, sure as you're born, you'll have to shoot a lot of people and that will be the end of you."

Wood had no hunger for martyrdom and in fields other than military had been known to make concessions to the law of self-preservation; but this was his job, and as he had once said to Mrs. Roosevelt, a man must live with himself. "If it's the end of me, it's the end of me, and there's nothing more to be said. But I won't send a subordinate down there and then if things go wrong protect myself by making a subordinate carry the blame."

Late that afternoon in the mayor's office at Gary Wood brought the leaders in the disturbance before him.

"I am about to issue a proclamation," he said, "and I want you all to hear it and to understand the situation." He dictated a statement.

"You have heard what will be expected of the citizens of Gary," he concluded. "The regulations in this proclamation are all that there are. There will be no secret instructions."

Makes One Fact Clear.

Wood turned to the labor leaders. "I want to make one thing clear to the workers you represent. The military forces are in Gary not in the interests of the steel operators and not in the interest of the strikers, but to maintain law and order. In our official capacity we are not interested whether the strike continues or not. We are here to see that the citizens of Gary are protected in their peaceful pursuits and that individual and property rights, under the law, of the striking employes of the steel mills are protected as well as the rights of other citizens and of the Steel Corporation."

"General," said the strike leader, "that's fair enough. We've got no kick against the troops being in Gary. We're glad they're here because we believe that under your orders they'll give us square treatment. Now what about picketing?"

Permits Picketing.

"Picketing in reasonable numbers is permissible. Your pickets may offer arguments, remonstrances, anything of that kind. But under no circumstances must they offer personal violence, or use threats. Any man who wants to work shall do so without fear, and any man who does not want to work shall refrain without fear—if we have to shoot the man who interferes with either."

That proved highly satisfactory. "What about meetings?"

"Have all you want. But have them indoors and don't let any one preach sedition. The reason I don't want you to hold them outdoors is because outdoor meetings can not be controlled. You can have any one you want address your meetings, but you will be personally responsible that no disorder occurs and that nothing is said advocating the overthrow of American institutions."

There was one man, an agitator of foreign birth, who stood a little apart. Wood turned to him with finger pointed.

Threatens Shooting.

"You," he said sharply, "you have come to this country to find a freedom which was denied you in the land of your birth. You have prospered. But you have done everything in your power, I understand, to overthrow the system of law and order which gave you your opportunity. You stand here today under a military regime instituted for the purpose of maintaining law and order. If you utter or publish inflammatory matter tending to stir up these people to the point where they disregard law and order and resort to violence, you will be promptly suppressed and, if necessary, shot. Do you understand?"

Yes, he understood.

When the sinister little man had slipped from the room Wood shook hands with the labor men. Was everything clear? They agreed that it was. "Boys," announced the spokesman to a group of friends in the outer office, "it's all right. We're going to get a square deal."

"I left the city at 1 o'clock," Wood wrote Henry L. Stimson. "The streets were empty, and I am now, in addition to routine military duties, practically Mayor of Omaha and Gary, with prospects of additions to the crop. So far, although we have ruled with a heavy hand, not a shot has been fired or a life lost."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

NEW FOODS.

In establishing good eating habits, it is important that the child learn to accept new foods with a minimum of dislike. Between the ages of 1 and 2 the child should add to his diet a whole series of new flavors and consistencies.

The earlier this training is begun the better. Most doctors advise giving a large variety of fruit and vegetable juices before the end of the first year.

This has certain nutritional advantages, and also serves the purpose of minimizing the child's resistance to vegetables and fruits when they are later served to them in solid form.

In introducing any new food, give the child a very small quantity at first. If he resists after the first taste, don't force him to take more but give him the same food on several successive days.

When introducing a new food, be sure not to serve at the same meal a large amount of some starchy, bulky dish to which the child has been accustomed. He will satisfy his appetite with the familiar food and leave the unfamiliar one.

Don't start to enlarge his diet on a day when he has been especially cross and tired, or when it is evident that his appetite is not at its best.

Show him that you are pleased with his attempt to eat the new food, even if he does not take as much as you would wish him to.

The stimulus of a good example is a great help. Seeing other members of the family eat a certain food with gusto will inspire the ambition to eat it too. Give it to him without much comment, especially if he has already shown a tendency to be negative toward your suggestions.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Favorite dishes, hobbies and what-not, mostly the latter:

Victor McLaglen grows several varieties of roses in his garden, giving them his personal attention when he has time, which isn't often.

RICHARD DIX

Betty Compton's home, one of the few movie homes actually on Hollywood boulevard, the main stem, is furnished in two of the more popular Louis styles. She goes in for antiques and Dresden ware.

Laura La Plante likes pigs' knuckles and sauerkraut.

Ruth Chatterton wears wigs on the screen most of the time.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., the prima donna, is carrying a pet kinkajou around these days. It's from South America and is a member of the rodent family.

"The Doorway to Hell" is not, as some have suspected, a story about Hollywood, nor is "Forgotten Women" one about golf widows.

Southwest Epic.

An epic of great proportion has been made from Edna Ferber's story of the founding of the Southwest. Every inch of "Cimarron" moves with a spirit that is rare in films. Wesley Ruggles did an inspired piece of directing.

It brings forth a new Richard Dix, a Dix reminiscent of five or more years ago, a Dix who is a character instead of an actor.

Every role is nicely cast, and the detailed changes in the appearance of the characters as they move through the seven stages of the story is highly commendable, the credit being divided between them and the make-up man.

The single flaw is a wholly unnecessary reproduction of a likeness of Theodore Roosevelt behind a subtitle. It reminded me of the flag-dropping that wind-up ham vaudeville acts used to go in for. Only in their case it was necessary. They had to hear some applause.

Hostile.

Beverly Hills, the little city that is surrounded by Los Angeles, and wherein live many of Hollywood's prominent laborers, refuses to permit a motion picture studio to operate within its limits.

The owners of a small company in Beverly were haled before the city council and told to get out or be arrested for violating a city ordinance. Their defense was that they were only developing some film showing the antics of an educated frog.

The council was a bit impressed.

ACID after meals

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Eat without fear of "indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All drug stores—in 25c and 50c bottles.

Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle.

OF course, you want your home properly equipped with lighting and heating facilities. Well, isn't it just as important to have it adequately equipped with

Mr. Mitchell Is Dinner Host For President

Hoovers, 32 Years Wed, Recipients of Many Messages.

WITH the advent of their thirty-second wedding anniversary adding color to the day and a delightful dinner of state aspect climaxing the evening, the President and Mrs. Hoover yesterday launched in an auspicious manner a trio of busy days which include not only the function given last night by the Attorney General and Mrs. William De Witt Mitchell but also a reception tonight at the White House for the Army and Navy and the annual breakfast given for the First Lady tomorrow noon at the Willard by the Congressional Club.

Representing another "Cabinet dinner" when the President and Mrs. Hoover are honored at dinner by members of his "supporting staff" the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell were hosts at their home on Kalorama Circle.

Reminiscent of the dinner given last week for the Chief Executive and First Lady by the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, who limited their company almost entirely to guests from the Secretary's home State, Oklahoma, the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, with only two exceptions, feted a Minnesota delegation. All the guests were from out of town.

Included in the company were Miss Helen Bunn, of St. Paul, who is visiting the Mitchells, having come to Washington especially for the dinner; Mrs. George Christian, of Minneapolis; Dr. Harry Garfield, president of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., and Mrs. Garfield; Mr. Hugh McCleran, of Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Snyder, of Minneapolis; Mr. Carl Taylor, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Weyerhauser, of St. Paul.

The President and Mrs. Hoover made no celebration of their wedding anniversary, passing the day quietly, although happily reminded by friends of the important day through many messages from the West Coast.

Mrs. Hoover will be the honor guest tomorrow of the Congressional Club, the members having planned a gala breakfast at the Willard Hotel, when several hundred guests will be present at the honor table, where, with Mrs. Hoover, will be the president of the club, Mrs. Porter H. IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

NEXT week Miss Jane Cowl comes to town with two plays—an old one and a new one. She brings this time to the Belasco Mr. William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and Mr. Levy's "Art and Mrs. Bottle," a comedy built around the love life of a plumber.

* * * *

While all this is going on in the Lafayette Square district, the National will play host to a rambling bit of American comedy called "Strictly Dishonorable," a play that is out to break the long-distance record of the theater. It is sailing now into its eightieth week—or something like that.

* * * *

And on Sunday, for the devotees of travel talks, Mr. E. M. Newman will park his cinema machine in the National Theater and throw on the screen some of the outstanding scenery of dear old "Switzerland." As school children, most of Mr. Newman's patrons read about the life-saving ability of St. Bernard dogs—and to recall these memories he shows an exhausted traveler, buried in the snow, dug out by the bow-wows.

* * * *

All the big musicals these days are getting started in Pittsburgh, it seems. Then they come to Washington, and from here to New York. "America's Sweetheart" followed that route. Now comes word that another mammoth show, "Making Mary," will follow the same line. It lands here March 1, and the following week will be staged in the New Amsterdam Theater—the home of the Zeigfeld Follies, of bygone days.

* * * *

Speaking of Pittsburgh, who should come to town but Mr. Elmer Kenyon, once a learned professor in the academic halls and now, still learned, the literary light ahead of the Theater Guild's latest production, a piece from Vienna—Arthur Schnitzler's "The Lonely Way." The name of this famous Austrian writer has been bandied about for years; but though he is known by a circle of readers as a novelist, he is known to the American playgoer as playwright, especially for his authorship of "Anatole," in which John Barrymore appeared in 1912.

* * * *

Selena Royle, playing a featured role in the new play at the National, "Heat Wave," is the daughter of a celebrated American playwright, Edwin Milton Royle, who wrote, among other plays, "The Squaw Man." Miss Royle is rated one of the fine actresses of the American stage and she has a sister, too, on the boards—Josephine Royle; all of which would seem to show that histrionic talent may run in families.

* * * *

This little Betty Lawford—now, there's a girl for you—and those who see her startling beauty on the stage of the National will soon see her features in the halls of the cinema; for this is the secret bruited about the lobby of the National on opening night; Miss Lawford, who is the daughter of that sterling actor, Ernest Lawford, last seen here in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, has signed a five-year contract with one of the big motion picture producing companies.

* * * *

Further evidence that the movies and the stage are somewhat related is the fact that Flobelle and Mary Margaret Fairbanks, coming here next week with "Strictly Dishonorable," are nieces of the distinguished motion picture player, Douglas Fairbanks.

* * * *

As Mr. Nelson Bell remarks, the two professions are getting rather clubby.

Churchill's Book Portrays South Winning Civil War

Compilation of Suppositions Shows United States Split Into Two Republics, and Armed to Teeth and Aching for Final Conflict.

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.). — What might have happened if the South had won the American Civil War is the subject of speculation in a new book by Winston Churchill, fiery British politician, published today.

The book is entitled "If It Had Happened Otherwise." In it Churchill envisions the United States split into two republics, armed to the teeth and both aching for a final settlement of the dispute.

The political genius of Arthur Balfour, the English statesman, and Theodore Roosevelt intervened, however, in Mr. Churchill's remade history, and in 1905 a league of nations was formed under which England and the United States agreed to make war impossible.

In the European crisis of 1914 this English - speaking association was placed in operation, and the belligerents were informed that the Anglo-Saxon alliance would war on any country invading its neighbors.

Churchill sees the kaiser secretly glad of this interruption and a world war thereby averted.

The book is a compilation of suppositions by such writers as G. K. Chesterton, Hilaire Belloc, Phillip Guedalla and Andre Maurois, and is edited by J. C. Squire.

RECESS FROM EATING.

BECAUSE of the World War Americans have not heard much of Prof. Van Noorden, a prolific writer on diet and health subjects twenty years ago. The Berlin letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association quotes many opinions on diet given by Von Noorden in a lecture in the German capital November, 1930. Some of these we quote.

"We discard the waters and liquors in which vegetables and meats have been cooked. We waste much of the minerals and vitamines we need." He advocates making these liquors into soups or sauces and eating them.

For the same reasons he favored eating raw foods. However, those who ate raw foods were very apt to become food faddists and to suffer in health because of the one-sidedness and lack of balance of their diets. We probably eat too much salt and we would be better off if we decreased the average daily intake of salt by about one-half. When one lives on a high salt diet he decreases the proportion of lime in his blood and this lowers his resistance. Conversely, decreasing the intake of salt increases the blood calcium and raises resistance.

If a person is on a diet it is well for him to take occasional recesses. For instance, if he is on a salt-free or low salt diet let him stick to the rules for a period. Then, when his appetite fails, let him eat saltier foods for a brief recess. The man who is dieting on all the fats he can stand should have an occasional recess from fats, during which he can eat cereals as his appetite calls. Likewise, with those who are dieting for diabetes, for tuberculosis, for obesity, and those who are on a low protein diet.

In several European countries experts in diet and nutrition take prominent part in health councils. Good illustration are Dr. Rubner, in Germany, and Dr. Hinhede in Denmark. Von Noorden said that men in such positions must bear in mind the resources of their country, the economy of foods, the tastes of the people and their customs, as well as the number of calories, the minerals and vitamins in different articles of diet.

The bases of all diets must be meat and potatoes, rye bread, fruit, fresh vegetables and leafy salads. Had Dr. Von Noorden been in this country he would not have specified rye bread, though rye flour is sometimes so milled that the germ remains in the flour.

ALUMINUM AND CANCER.

Mrs. R. D. K. writes:

1. Is cancer caused by cooking food in aluminum utensils? A friend told me she never used aluminum for that reason.

2. Will drinking extremely hot liquids, such as tea, coffee, and soup, cause cancer?

3. I see by the papers that grape juice has reducing qualities. Is that true?

4. In what form should it be taken, diluted or as is, to have any effect?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. It may be and probably is a contributing cause of some cases.

3. No. The people who take the grape cure lose weight if they keep away from other foods. Otherwise they gain. The grape cure, long used in Europe, is merely a method of fasting.

4. Diluted.

AUBURN GAINS 14 POINTS

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—That generous whiff of bullish smelling salts which the stock market got last Saturday carried it on to further valiant deeds today.

The net result was not as large as yesterday—roughly, average gains of 2 points compared with 3½—but the turnover increased impressively. Sales approximated 4,800,000 shares against 4,100,000 on Monday, the largest since the 5,000,000 share volume of December 17.

The composite closing price of 90 stocks, at 136.8, was the best figure since October 16, exceeding by a slim margin the December high. Rails joined the utilities and the industrials in establishing new 1931 peaks, although there was generally better strength in the last named category than in the others. Late profit-taking cut down extreme advances of 2 to 17 points.

Technical Corner Suspected.

Evidence that a technical corner existed in Auburn Auto, at least to the extent that the stock was becoming increasingly scarce, was offered in its extreme rise of 153¾, and-its net gain of 14 represented a rally of nearly 33 points in two days. Shorts in J. I. Case experienced five anxious hours, for that issue soared 15 points, holding all but 2 of the advance.

More conservative improvement was the rule elsewhere. Westinghouse, however, shot up 8¾ and industrial Rayon 9½ before reacting 3 and 2, respectively. North American, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, National Steel and Republic Steel preferred closed about 5 higher, but other favorites were less enthusiastic.

U. S. Steel, at its top quotation of 147¼, was up 4. It finished with a 3-point gain. American Can retained less than a point of its 2¾ spurt, and American Telephone, which had made a similar rise, closed unchanged. General Motors, General Electric, Kennecott, Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, American Smelting and Union Carbide were up 1 to 1½ points net.

New York Central Up.

Omission of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern preferred dividend broke the stock several points, but failed to disturb the other rails, which had been somewhat sluggish since the rally started. New York Central rose 1 points and closed with a gain of 1½. Union Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Railway were also strong.

Although the consensus in brokerage house circles regarded the movement as primarily governed by technical factors, today's market had some favorable news to work on. U. S. Steel's backlog rose 188,755 tons in January, an unexpectedly large gain, exceeding the increase for the same month in either 1930 or 1929.

Rumors of a revolutionary outbreak in Russia received wide circulation, specially in Chicago, where grain traders hastily covered on the theory that if the report proved true wheat might be relieved from the embarrassment of Soviet dumping. Late wheat futures were bid up briskly. July closing 2½ higher and September, 3. Corn's net gains were rather nominal, running to the major fractions. Cotton, however, made new highs for the movement in sympathy with grain and closed $1 to $1.20 a bale higher.

A rise in second grade bonds pointed to the improved attitude toward that market. Prime issues showed little change, but there was the upward flurry in share privilege stock prices.

Foreign exchanges sagged, with sterling cables showing a loss of 5-32, which possibly reflected a slackening in the flow of American funds to London.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Rumors of a revolution in Russia whirled grain prices wildly upward late today. The reports were discredited by Soviet representatives, but big buying orders believed to be from European sources gave countenance to widely circulated reports that Russian political developments were disturbing in the extreme. A maximum jump of 3½ cents a bushel by the Chicago wheat market was registered.

Wheat closed nervous ⅜ to 3¼ cents advance, corn ½ to 1 up, oats ¼ to ⅜ higher and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents gain.

A sensational bulge in Liverpool wheat quotations preceded the Chicago flurry. It was ascribed to a temporary shortage of supplies there and to inferior quality of the stocks on hand. For the moment the effect of the Liverpool rise appeared to be more than counterbalanced by dispatches saying Russia had slashed wheat prices in European continental markets. As a result, profit taking sales here broadened out, and Chicago market ranged lower until after midday, when wholesale buying orders apparently on European account sent values soaring.

Highest prices of the day in wheat were reached during the final transactions. Some authorities said Russian reports of political disturbances had been current in various quarters since yesterday, but that there had been no confirmation. In the face of the unsubstantiated character of the Russian reports, however, today's advance carried wheat to the topmost level since December 15. As was the case yesterday, stock market buoyancy did much to help wheat.

Corn and oats tagged upward after wheat, although earlier corn failed to receive the aggressive buying support that of late had been conspicuous. Messages from other corn centers noted a decided betterment in rural offerings. Corn primary arrivals also increased, totaling 841,000 bushels against 626,000 a week ago.

Provisions went higher both with hog values and cereals.

CONVERTIBLES LEAD BUSY BOND SESSION

Second-Grade Industrials and Rails Are Stars in Vigorous Rally.

FOREIGN ISSUES STRONG

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Prime investment bonds took a back seat while convertibles and other issues falling under the spell of stocks had their fling, in a busy session of the bond market today.

Trading was completely dominated by the bullish tendencies of stocks and while prime bonds were steady on narrow fluctuations either way stock privilege and secondary liens had their best workout in weeks. Second grade rails and industrials that are selling far below par rallied vigorously. Convertibles have not been as active as they were today in a long time.

Prominent in the revival were Allegheny 5s, and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, each gaining a point, and American Telephone 4½s, Atchison 4½s, St. Paul 5s, International Telephone and Kreuger and Toll 5s. Warner Brothers 6s, General Theaters 6s, and Philadelphia, Reading Coal & Iron 6s participated in the advance but lost their gains before the close.

Frisco 4½s, up 1½, International Great Northern 7s up 5½, M. K. T. adjustment 5s A, up 2, and Missouri Pacific General 4s up 1¼ were among the second grade rails that profited from the upswing. Gains in some of the second grade and speculative industrials that have been lagging behind issues of higher quality were about on a par. Consolidated Coal 5s climbed 3½, Lorillard 5s, 2, and Crown William Paper 6s, 3⅛. National Radiator 6½s, recovered 4 points.

Foreign bonds were strong. The buying movement in German bonds gained momentum. German 5½s gained ⅝ in a turnover of more than $500,000.

Offerings tomorrow will include $6,000,000 Louisville Gas & Electric Co. 4½s, and $4,000,000 Michigan Central 4½s. The Michigan Central issue will refund a bond issue of similar size of the Detroit and Bay City Railroad, a subsidiary. Half of the utility issue is for redeeming a $3,000,000 5½ per cent issue due May 1, 1954. Bonds of both companies sold off today in anticipation of the new loans.

MARYLAND PHONES TO GET $20,000,000

Chesapeake & Potomac Will Spend Vast Sum Over Three-Year Period.

ENTIRE STATE AFFECTED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Gross expenditures of approximately $20,000,000 will be made in Maryland by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., of Baltimore, during the next three years. This was announced following the annual meeting of the company at Baltimore yesterday.

The outlay will be applied to plant additions, betterments and replacements and of this budget, it is estimated $4,583,000 will be spent this year.

Under the company's expansion program for Maryland, a net gain of 32,700 telephones by the end of 1933 is provided. With these additions, the State will be served by approximately 250,000 telephones. This year, 10,500 telephones will be added to the 216,248 in use January 1, making approximately 227,000 in service at the close of the year.

Construction Throughout State.

The telephone company's construction program last year included gross expenditures of $5,831,643. The major projects were land and buildings, $187,979; central office equipment, $1,478,974; station equipment on the subscribers' premises, $1,635,210; exchange and toll lines, $2,334,219. The construction projects covered all sections of the State. At the close of the year, total plant investment in Maryland was $48,301,463, an increase for the year of 5.8 per cent.

Telephone operating revenues during the year totaled $13,933,188, a gain of 3.5 per cent over the previous year. Telephone expenses, including depreciation, uncollectible, taxes, rent and miscellaneous deductions, were $10,996,002, an increase of 4 per cent.

Net telephone revenues last year were $2,937,186. Other net income amounted to $48,331, making total net earnings of $2,985,517 available for interest and dividends. One of the large items of expense is operating taxes, which for the year amounted to $1,409,250. For the year, operating taxes required approximately 10 per cent of the gross revenues.

Directors Are Reelected.

All directors were reelected, as follows: Alexander Armstrong, William G. Baker, R. Howard Bland, Charles H. Carter, Phillips L. Goldsborough and Harry M. Warfield, Baltimore; Lloyd B. Wilson, Philip O. Coffin and Marshal D. Sedam, Washington; Walter S. Gifford and Eugene S. Wilson, New York.

The banking sponsorship of those corporations whose stocks are most commonly selected to form the portfolios of fixed investment trusts is shown in a survey made by American Trustee Share Corporation. In view of the marked diversion of investment capital into fixed trusts in recent months, the survey anticipates a growing public interest in the banking connections of corporations, whose stocks underlie fixed trust shares.

Nitrate Combine May Issue Bonds

$45,000,000 Amount Is to Be Secured by Export Levy.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Indications that financing for the Cosach, the Chilean nitrate combine formed last year, will take the form of a $45,000,000 bond issue were given in an official statement today by Pablo Ramirez, head of a Chilean commission that has been conferring with bankers here for several weeks.

Reports from abroad stated that a $45,000,000 bond issue has been authorized by Cosach, of which $34,000,000 will be marketed in London and New York. The report stated that the issue would be secured by a levy on each ton of nitrate exported up to a certain maximum, beyond which shipments abroad would be free.

In an official statement today, Mr. Ramirez said: "The discussions regarding financing of Cosach which are not yet concluded, have been generally along the line of the foreign dispatch, except the statement that bonds will be guaranteed by the Chilean government. This latter has never been considered and definitely will not be given."

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 10.

A taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both capital and personal services are material income-producing factors also is given consideration in computing the tax on earned income to which the 25 per cent credit applies.

The revenue act provides in such cases that a "reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services" shall be considered as earned income. Such allowance is not to exceed 20 per cent of the taxpayer's share of the net profits of such trade or business. For example, a taxpayer received in 1930, from a business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, a net profit of $30,000. The 25 per cent credit is computed on 20 per cent of $30,000, or $6,000. The amount payable is the tax on $30,000 less 25 per cent of the tax on $6,000.

Within the range of the second class of earned income are many kinds of professions in which individuals are associated as partners. When the facts in each case indicate that the proportionate share to each partner of the net amount of fees from the professional partnership truly represents compensation for personal services actually rendered by him, such partnership share is to be classified as earned income in the individual return. If such share does not represent compensation for services rendered but instead represents gain derived through the employment of assistants who do all the actual work, it is not to be classified as earned income to the taxpayers.

Grid Captain Lost to G.U. Team

Brennan Among Trio of Athletes Failing in Studies.

White, Rapp, of Baseball Squad, Unlikely to Resume Studies.

THREE prominent Georgetown University athletes, including Robert P. "Bob" Brennan, of Pawtucket, R. I., football captain-elect, are not expected to continue their careers at the Hilltop as the result of failures in midyear examinations, The Post learned yesterday.

The others are William Rapp, of this city, star utility member of the baseball team, and Russell "Packy" White, of South Orange, N. J., veteran left-hand pitcher. Brennan and Rapp had one more year of study to pursue, while White was slated to graduate in June.

At the office of the dean it was stated that none of the three, along with several other nonathletes who failed, is expected to continue in the university.

Brennan Star End For Two Years.

Brennan was elected 1931 football captain shortly after the close of the past gridiron season in recognition of his sterling play at end for two years on the varsity eleven. Despite his comparative lack of beef and brawn, he was able to outplay opponents much his superior physically.

Last season saw Brennan in a star role. His performances against West Virginia Wesleyan and Michigan State in game played here were especially outstanding. Not only was his defensive work of high caliber, but he executed brilliant plays in making interference and pass-catching.

Rapp and White Regulars on Nine.

Rapp and White had been counted on as integral members of the 1931 Georgetown Baseball Team. Rapp, a graduate of St. John's Prep School, was slated for a regular position in either the infield or outfield. Last spring he rendered valuable service as a substitute in several positions. White, who has been a Hilltop pitching mainstay for two years, was expected to repeat this year.

Extra Period Decides for Maryland

Ronkin Is Hero in 33 to 31 Defeat of North Carolina.

Lead Changes Hands 8 Times; Score Tied on 14 Occasions.

A THOUSAND groggy, thrill-heated fans reeled out of Ritchie gym into the cold last night after watching 45 minutes of the most frenzied basket ball a college game in this section has produced in many a day—or night.

Several dizzy scorers and reporters were left with headaches at the press table trying to agree on the appropriate superlatives for this bedlam from which Maryland's Southern Conference title contender emerged a 33-31 winner over North Carolina.

What happened? Honest, now, that's a tough one. But we do know that Maryland won, that the lead changed hands eight times, that the score was tied fourteen times and that five players were yanked for too much fouling. There must be some sort of record in that array of items.

Heroes? Oh, yes. The place was littered with them, with Ed. (Big Grin) Ronkin, Maryland forward, doing most of the glittering. It was Ed, with the ear-to-ear smile, who coolly caged the tying point 55 seconds before the end of the regulation game, 26,26, and who sank two goals in the extra five minutes which gave the Terrapins a lead they never relinquished.

Ronkin, it was, who tied the score at 14-14 and then helped a couple of one-pointers to shove Maryland ahead as the first half closed. The statisticians also found that Ed made three assists—well directed passes to teammates that resulted in field goals. And to crown his achievement he failed to join the steady stream of players who overstepped the foul rule.

Lexington, Va., Feb. 10.—V. M. I. Freshmen basket ball players won their last home game today, defeating Salem High School, 25 to 12. The Cadets had the advantage of height and easily took a first half lead of 14 to 4, with Smith and Stone heading the attack.

DeMolay Take Guards In Intercity League

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Md., Feb. 10.—The DeMolays tightened their hold on first place in the InterCity Basket Ball League here tonight at the armory by taking the Laurel Guards into camp to the tune of 33-29in one of the fastest games their league has produced. The Guards threatened continually, but the DeMolay tossers were able to keep ahead at all times.

In the other game of the league played here, Western Electric went into a second place tie with the Guards by reason of a 31-20 victory over the Hoplites. A determined second half drive put the Electricians across after the count had been knotted 10-10 at the half.

Belle The Devil Sets Pace In Amateur Field Trials

Finds Five Coveys, Four of Which She Handles Perfectly, to Feature Second Day's Events at Camp Lee.

CAMP LEE, Va., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The brilliant performance of Belle The Devil, pointer gyp owned and handled by Raymond Hoagland, of Rumson, N. J., was a feature of the second day's running of the annual championship trials of the Association of Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America here today.

Running in the third heat against Eugene M's Buddy, setter, owned by Lynn A. Davis, of Binghampton, N. Y., and handled by J. W. King, of Richmond, Belle found five coveys, four of which she handled perfectly, maintaining her speed throughout the two-hour heat and finishing strong. Observers agreed she had set up a record hard to beat.

28 Covies of Birds Found During Day.

The first brace of the day was a race between Nepkin Lady, pointer, owned and handled by Dr. W. F. Vail, of Greenwich, Conn., and Junedale Lady Bird, pointer, owned and directed by Dr. F. H. Lahey, of Boston. In the second brace Junedale Allie, pointer, owned and handled by Dr. Lahey, was paired with Lindy Detour, setter, owned and handled by Allen W. Valentine, of Richmond, and the final brace of the day was made up of Pohic Commanche, pointer, owned by J. T. Coolihan, of Baltimore, and handled by C. B. Stickley, of Vauclause, Va., and Vernon's Prince, pointer, owned by Ella Cox, of Louisville, Ky., and handled by Ernest Mead, of Richmond. During the day 28 coveys of birds were found by the dogs or ridden by the gallery.

Four heats will be run tomorrow in the event 25 dogs are entered. Decisions are reserved until conclusion of the trials.

Brooklyn Signs Quinn; Has Pitched Since 1903

Quinn, the oldest active baseball player in the big leagues, who said today in Hot Springs, Ark., he is 42, but who is known to be considerably nearer 50, wired Dave Driscoll he would accept the Brooklyn offer.

Jack has spent all but a part of one season in the American League during his "big time" playing, and the Brooklyn Club figures his spitter will have some of the heavy-hitting league batsmen puzzled.

He began to pitch professional ball in 1903.

Oregon State May Play 1931 West. Md. Eleven

Corvallis, Oreg., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—An intersectional football game between Oregon State College and Western Maryland University, of Baltimore, appeared probable today as negotiations neared conclusion. The announcement was made by Paul J. Schissler, Oregon State coach.

The game would be played in Baltimore with next November 21 as the tentative date.

G. W. VICTIM OF RIDER, 28-20

Trenton Five Always Leads, Annexing 13th Straight.

RIDER COLLEGE, of Trenton, N. J., defeated George Washington University last night by the composite margin of a mighty block and shift play, by an average of 6 inches height advantage, and by 8 points, 28 to 20, in as strenuously played a game as the H Street Gymnasium has seen this year. It was the visitors' thirteenth straight victory.

The manner in which the invaders cut in through the Colonials' defense to take the wiggled ball from Bing Miller, 6-foot-6, of amalgamated basket ball excellence stationed on the free toss stripe, left little to be desired, and more than anything else scattered the usually close-knitted team play of the harried hosts.

Failure at Free Tossing Costly to G. W.

Miller's colleagues showed a shiftiness and a unity such as is not usual even among the fastest collegiate teams. Their methods of lulling two of the Colonials into guarding the same man, while the unguarded Mayer streaked gasketward were factors in their defeat of a team which appeared slightly the superior in speed, if nothing more.

George Washington muffed a chance to go into the second half on even terms by capitalizing on but two of eight free tosses. Starting out at 15-9 Rider swept smoothly on to the win, always ahead but forced to keep in high gear because of the ever-present threat of one of Burgess' long, ceiling-high shots. Two marathon throws and a foul from Burgess' hands brought his team to within four points of the leaders, 23-19, with but five minutes to play, but Rider seemed able instantly to secure sovereignty over the ball, and in due order produce a basket for its pains. Burgess supplied eleven of his team's points.

Pare Easy for Tilden In Miami Net Match

Miami, Fla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—"Big Bill" Tilden won an easy three-set exhibition tennis match from Emmett Pare, former Western champion, at the Miami Country Club today with scores of 6—1, 6—4, 6—3.

Tilden, who recently turned professional, had no difficulty in retaining the upper hand throughout.

A doubles match between Tilden, paired with Arthur Rudolph, Palm Beach pro and Pare, teamed with Ed Faulkner, Boca Raton pro, was halted in the second set by rain. Pare and Faulkner won the first set 6—4.

The par value of the stock is $25, but recent transfers have been at $100. Sam Breadon, president; Branch Rickey, vice president, and all other officers were re-elected.

Cotton Invites 3 More Pros To Tour U.S., Widening Rift

LONDON, England, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The breach between Henry Cotton, foremost British golfer, and the Professional Golfers Association widened today with Cotton's statement that he had asked Percy Alliss, Aubrey Boomer and I. C. Boyer to join him as a team to compete in open championship tournaments in the United States.

Cotton's tilt with the P. G. A. centers over the latter's ruling that all Ryder Cup Team members must tour as a body in America and return to England at the same time. Cotton refused to abide by the ruling, claiming he must consider his own future.

U. S. Fans Promised Triangular Golf Attraction.

The invitations to Alliss, Boomer and Boyer is taken as an indication that American golf fans will be treated to a spectacle of a triangular attraction between the leading British, American and continental professionals. Boyer is regarded as one of the leading French players, while the abilities of Cotton and Boomer, who held the French professional championship last year, are well known. Both Cotton and Boomer were members of the 1929 Ryder Cup Team.

Alliss, because of his long residence in Berlin, is not available for Ryder Cup competition this year.

F. I. C. Pignon, manager of the British Team, said:

"I regret the unfortunate situation, but if I'm not to have a team divided against itself, all must submit to rules. I am unprepared to discuss the merits of the rule; but with James Braid, J. H. Taylor and Ted Ray on the executive committee, they must have good reason for making the rule. If some members want to make a tour that means personal gain, it is better that we know beforehand."

U. S. Pro Body to Welcome Cotton.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Henry Cotton, British golf star, will be welcome to compete in any American open golf tournaments despite his differences with the British golfing authorities, Albert Gates, business administrator for the Professional Golfing Association of America said tonight.

St. Albans tossers yesterday had little or no trouble in disposing of the Silver Spring High five in the Saints' gym, 31 to 13. The Saints were always in the van, leading, 12 to 3, at the half.

Freeman alone scored more points than did the Silver Spring five, being credited with 16.

Hyattsville, Annapolis Sextets in 21-21 Tie

Jean Gross' two-pointer in the last minute of play enabled the Hyattsville High School Girls Team to close its season by holding the Annapolis High School sextet to a 21-21 tie in a hard-fought game played yesterday afternoon at the Hyattsville Armory. Miss Gross' score climaxed a furious second-half rally on the part of the Hyattsville girls, which overcame an eight-point lead gained by their guests during the first half.

E Sazanna, of Annapolis, led both teams in scoring, sinking nine two-pointers. Jean Gross and J. Hamilton were the Hyattsville stars.

Principals May Vote Today on Plan of Play-Off for Title.

Tech-Central Replay Proposed; Eastern to Meet Winner.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

DALLAS SHIRLEY, Eastern guard, stood on the free toss line adjoining the north basket at Tech High yesterday the center of 3,500 partially sane fans. The score stood 30-29 in favor of Central. There were precisely twenty seconds to play. Sinking one shot would tie the game and give his team a good chance to win in the extra period. Sinking both would mean that in that far extended day, when the ivy grew thick on the walls of Eastern High, his name would still echo through the halls.

Shirley missed—missed by that ineffable margin which separates a hero from a goat.

The results of that failure to toss an otherwise insignificant ball through a dull-looking mixture of iron and cord loom large with the regulation series at an end. In the first place Tech went into a tie with Eastern, having dealt Business a 54-19 drubbing early in the afternoon. The principals will gather this afternoon or tomorrow morning to decide what must be done now that Tech has tied for first place—Tech the team which beat Central earlier in the series mostly through the use of an allegedly ineligible player, Everett Johnson. If the school heads forfeit the Tech-Central game of some time ago to Central, then Central and Eastern will be tied for first place.

Principal Suggests Play-Off Plan.

Principal Charles Hart, of Eastern, and the school head most closely acquainted with high school sports, suggests the following solution: Permit Central and Tech to replay their game Friday and then match the winner against Eastern next Tuesday for the championship.

It remained for the very last game of the schedule to stir up the most violent enthusiasm of the series. To say that Central and Eastern were as evenly matched as the Tech backboards, puts it mildly. They hung together in grim fashion, from the opening whistle down to ending gun.

It was not always good basket ball, the thing the boys were playing yesterday, but every minute was packed with anxiety. The shooting, particularly, was poor at the start. The first period was given over mostly to good passing, and poor marksmanship, and ended with the score, 3 to 1, in Eastern's favor. Central gained a bit of its touch thereafter and knotted up the count, 8 to 8, at the half. Downey Rice coming through with a clever one-handed shot and a free toss just before the gun.

Bill Burke Takes Prominent Part.

The Bill Burke, heretofore just one of the boys in the Central line-up, began to assert himself. Aided no doubt by the fact that Zola, the Eastern guard assigned to him, severely wrench his ankle early in the game and had to retire, Burke was left guarded with a slightly inferior brand of checking produced by Waters, Courtney and eventually by the limping Zola. But nothing seemed able to hold the scrappy Blue and White forward yesterday. He was constantly away with the ball and headed for the basket with a relentlessness that boded no good for those in his path. His six field goals, and three triumphs from the charity stripe, tell the story eloquently.

It was Burke who put his club ahead just after the half, and it was his opportune shots which kept them there. Central, as a team, was alive to its chances. Swift, before he was ejected from the game on personals, hung up a guarding performance that bordered on the airtight. Broadbent, too, played the game of his life—and that takes in real scope.

Noonan's Field Goal Cuts Down Lead.

Noonan's brilliant snow bird brought his team up to within one point of Central—29 to 28—with two minutes to play. Broadbent and Kane each came through on technical foul shots and then out of the fierce play emerged Shirley with his two chances as gift tosses which he missed.

Tech stormed over Business from start to finish, holding the chastened Stenographers to four well-scattered field goals. Business was

New Grid Coaches Visit Wash. and Lee

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Feb. 10.—Washington and Lee's new grid mentors for next season, Head Coach Jimmy De Hart and Line Coach Tex Tilson, today paid an informal visit to the campus in search of housing for their families who are expected to come here with the beginning of spring drill, Monday, March 2.

De Hart and Tilson were both at Duke, working in like capacities, when they received the call to come to Washington and Lee. De Hart, who returns here after a five year absence, replaced Gene Oberst as head coach.

YANKEE BERTHS OPEN FOR FIRST TIME IN SEASONS

Outfield Post And Infield Uncertain

Werber Among Trio Seeking Lary's Berth at Third Base.

McCarthy to Take Many Young Hurlers to Training Camp.

(This is the second of a series of articles detailing the efforts of the eight American League clubs to strengthen in preparation for the 1931 season.)

NEW YORK YANKEES.

MANAGER—Joseph V. McCarthy. Coaches—Arthur Fletcher, James Burke.

PITCHERS—Pipgras, Johnson, Ruffing, Sherid, McEvoy, *Weaver, *Miner, Rhodes, *Walsh, *Andrews, *Brown, right-handers; Pennock, Wells, Gomez, *Barnes, *Weinert, southpaws.

CATCHERS—Dickey, Jorgens, *R. Perkins, *Padden, *Karlon.

INFIELDERS—Gehrig, Lazzeri, Lary, Reese, Chapman, *Werber, *Gibson, *J. Sewell.

OUTFIELDERS — Ruth, Combs, Byrd, Cooke, *Hoag, *Walker. *New men.

THERE will be real competition for regular berths among the New York Yankees next month, a condition that has not existed at the training camp for several years. For a few seasons, the only question was which rookies would be kept for relief work. But, when Joe McCarthy, for five years manager of the Chicago Cubs, takes charge of the Yankees at St. Petersburg late in February, he will have plenty of problems.

Naturally, Joe is not worrying about Lou Gehrig at first nor Babe Ruth and Earl Combs for the outfield. For the other garden position, however, Dusty Cooke and Sammy Byrd must battle it out with Myril Hoag, Coast League star, and Fred Walker, South Atlantic League batting champion. Both of the newcomers are good.

Bill Werber Is Only Rookie Infielder.

While New York really has added but one rookie infielder, Bill Werber, Duke College phenom, who batted .344 for Albany last year, this youngster may provide considerable competition for Lyn Lary, who played short most of last season. McCarthy can use Tony Lazzeri at either second or third and know Tony is doing a good job of it. The chances are, however, that he will send him to third for the reason Ben Chapman is a better second baseman than he is third sacker.

If McCarthy starts his season with the same infield that Bob Shawkey employed at the close of the 1930 campaign, he will have Joe Sewell, Jimmy Reese and Werber as his extra infielders, in addition to Robert Gibson, a 21-year-old first sacker, who was purchased from Memphis, but who was optioned to a Central League club in 1930.

Effective pitching is what New York was most in the need of in 1930. Charley Ruffing was its only consistent winner outside of Ed Wells and Big Ed scored ten of his twelve victories against second division clubs. None of the Yankee pitchers was able to come through with an earned run average better than four runs to a game. Pipgras, however, should do better than he did last year. Pennock scarcely can be counted on to do any better, while Henry Johnson and Roy Sherid are erratic, world beaters one day and flops the next.

Jim Weaver Among Box Recruits.

To aid this pitching staff which was a disappointment in 1930, New York has added Phil Weinert, veteran southpaw who won sixteen and lost eleven for Louisville; Frank Barnes, southpaw from Toronto, who won thirteen and lost twelve in the International. Jim Weaver, right-hander who stands 6 feet 6 inches and won eighteen and lost ten for Baltimore; George Miner, right-hander who won six and lost thirteen for the hopeless Jersey City Club, and Walter Brown, a 200-pound right-hander from Oklahoma City, who led the Western League in effectiveness. Gordon Rhodes has been recalled from Hollywood, where he won nine and lost but two. Others recalled for further trials are Vernon Gomez, left-hander, who won eight and lost four for St. Paul; Ivy Andrews and Bob Walsh, both right-handers.

The Yankees allowed two veteran catchers, Benny Bengough, and Gene Hargrave, to depart, but in their places have taken on Cy Perkins, with Connie Mack for ten years, and Tom Padden, graduate of the Eastern League as well as International, while Arndt Jorgens was recalled from Jersey City, and Bill Karlon from Springfield. Bill Dickey, however, is expected to do the bulk of the receiving.

The power is there, the club has a most competent catcher in Dickey, the fielding is fair. If the pitching is improved, the Yankees will crowd the Athletics.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

JOHANNESBURG'S "human ostrich" has to be guarded closely at meal times, for the prison warden says that he is quite capable of getting away with a tin mug and plate.

Before becoming head of the Central Normal College at 22, Leslie I. Steinbach was dean of the physics department of the University of Indiana. He was educated at Indiana University and the University of Louisville. Steinbach's nearest rival for being the youngest college executive is probably Robert M. Hutchins, the 32-year-old president of the University of Chicago.

If the title "king of beasts" has anything to do with fighting, the lion doesn't deserve it. It is claimed that the wild boar and some other animals do not fear the lion's attack, and animal trainers vouch for the fact that a tiger can defeat a lion any old time.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address John Hix, care of The Washington Post and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

SEVERAL races on the program at Miami this afternoon have attracted many high class thoroughbreds to contest the purses. The Magic Handicap, feature event of the card, to be run as the fifth race, has drawn seven fleet milers.

PETO, clever 4-year-old in the Belair Stud string, has displayed his ability to carry weight and should tote his 118-pound assignment to a clear cut victory. He will appreciate the mile distance of the feature here. The E. B McLean colorbearer, SILVERDALE, appears to have the worst of the weights, with top impost of 125 pounds, but should follow the pace to gain the place. WILLIAM T., from the W. E. Caskey stable, has not raced since the Bowie meeting, but has trained well and is favored for the minor award.

FIRST RACE—ULTRA MARINE, a fair plater from the M. Lowenstein stable, has been raced into condition and should graduate from this cheap field. LITTLE COVENTRY has shown flashes of speed recently and is expected to furnish the opposition. ROLY POLY, an inconsistent plater from the De Steffano barn, appears best of the others.

SECOND RACE—ABSURDITY, winner of her last start, is at her best and should make it two straight. PARTIES, a highly regarded miss from the E. B. McLean Stable, disappointed in her debut, and may furnish the opposition. VIBA, a fleet daughter of Upset—Binding, has turned in some scintillating trials, and may break into the money in her first attempt.

THIRD RACE—BEGORRA showed a return to his winning form last start and figures to lead this band of platers to the wire. TRAVADO raced impressively in his first start and should finish in the runner-up position. PORT HARLEM is on the improvement and appears best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—HALF DAY, a fast-stepping John P. Grier gelding, in the G. D. Widener establishment, has raced with better company than he meets here and should experience little trouble in annexing the supporting feature. OCCURRENCE turned in a brilliant performance last outing, and, a return to that effort, should save the place. OPPONENT was outmatched in his last attempt, and is dropping down. The A. W. Wentzel steed is given the show call.

SIXTH RACE—STORM SIGNAL has shown the most consistent form and is the logical choice to gain the honors. ARMEE NAVEE prefers a heavy track, but is favored by the route, and is placed second. WESTERN PRINCESS, an in and outer, is capable of extending the top two.

SEVENTH RACE—CROYDEN, a steady plater in the S. Ryan string, appears best of the opposition. FAIR DALE has shown improvement in previous efforts and is favored for the place. RUNDALE is given the show call.

"Spit-Tipping Will Go When the Public Realizes It Exists"

Says

DR. JOHN N. RYAN

Health Officer, Passaic, New Jersey

Department of Health
MUNICIPAL BUILDING
PASSAIC, NEW JERSEY

May 21, 1930

American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Sirs:

I want the cigar smoking public to be made conscious of the danger to health involved in any unsanitary methods of manufacture. "Spit-tipping" is disgusting and unhealthy. It will go when the public realizes it exists, and it is such a campaign as yours which will bring the public to this realization.

I commend your campaign heartily and wish you well. I have no objection to your publication of this letter, over my signature, if it will help in the good work.

Very Truly Yours,
John N. Ryan
John N. Ryan,
Health Officer, City of Passaic.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Ryan's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Ryan writes: "'Spit-tipping' is disgusting and unhealthy."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke
